WATER PROJECTS ENABLING ACT VALID

National Guardsmen Ordered To 11 Oklahoma Counties

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS LAW ON ALL POINTS

Quo Warranto Suit Against Columbus Power District Dismissed—Believe Decision Clears All Doubts and Enables Immediate Construction Start.

Validity of the 1933 enabling act under which Nebraska's big public water projects are organized was upheld by the Nebraska Supreme court Saturday in an opinion dismissing the quo warranto action brought by a Platte county landowner against the Columbus power district involving the constitutionality of the act and also the validity of the district's organization.

The opinion, written by Judge E. E Good, and concurred in by the entire court, sustained the act on every point raised in the suit, instituted in the name of Walter Yoseke, a Platte county supervisor. The act under fire was S. F. 310, passed by the 1933 legislature providing machinery for the organization of public power and irrigation districts so that they might obtain federal grants and loans.

May Now Start Work.

With the question of constitutionality disposed of favorably, sponsors of both the Columbus and Sutherland projects now have a clear path ahead for an immediate start on putting to work the $15,000,000 in loans and grants appropriated by the PWA for the developments. Attorneys for the districts previously said a decision on the constitutionality of the enabling act and other controversial features of the projects constituted the last obstacle to actual construction work.

E. B. Perry, Lincoln, counsel for Loseke, had not read the opinion when he was informed of the court's decision. He said, however, that if the opinion holds out sufficient protection for his client's rights, he will advise him that no further legal action is necessary. While neither party to the litigation has characterized the quo warranto action as such, it has been understood that the suit was a friendly one.

While holding there is no conflict between two sections of the act, one prohibiting lease or alienation of the district's franchise or prop-

FARM PROBLEMS ARE DISCUSSED

Country Life Group Told Social Matters Demand Attention.

Loss Of Foreign Markets Blamed For Portion Of Plight.

The government must give more attention to the social implications of its new deal program as applied to farming if it is to be successful, Dr. E. L. Kirkpatrick of the University of Wisconsin told those present at a country life conference held at the college of agriculture Saturday. The conference, which commemorates the twenty-fifth anniversary of the report of Theodore Roosevelt's country life commission, was a part of a nationwide program sponsored by the student section of the American Country Life association.

"The new deal is giving attention to the human side of farming with many commendable efforts," Dr. Kirkpatrick said, "but in their intent to remedy the economic ailments they must become more and more concerned about the social ramifications and implications of our procedures or they will go down as failures."

The speaker, a professor of rural sociology, said the time is at hand for "increased attention to family and community living, new ways of using leisure, and new opportunities to serve" and he called it the task of colleges to utilize the energies of youth between the 4-H club and adult age groups to work toward such an end.

Loss of Markets.

Anderson Reports Wheat Hurt But Little By Recent High Winds

High winds that swept Nebraska this week did little damage to the state's winter wheat acreage, A. E. Anderson, state and federal agricultural statistician, said Saturday.

"Most of Nebraska's winter wheat crop looks good according to district statisticians returning to Lincoln from field activities in connection with the corn-hog program," Anderson said. "Conditions in the panhandle are generally excellent, save for some injury from worms. Southwestern northern and north central sections of the state show evidence of wind and worm damage while no damage was reported in other areas."

Friend Depositors Paid By RFC Loan

An RFC loan of $29322 is being used by the state receivership administration to pay 40 per cent of pending claims by depositors in the failed Friend State bank. Including a previous payment they have now received 55 per cent altogether, or $40,318. The remaining assets of the bank are taken over by the RFC as security for its loan.

PRESIDENT SIGNS RESOLUTION FOR A RATE INQUIRY

Directs Power Commission to Investigate Electricity Costs.

SENATOR NORRIS WITNESSES SIGNING

Inquiry Into Passenger Fare Rates in South and West Is Set.

WASHINGTON, April 14—(AP)—President Roosevelt today signed the Norris-Rankin resolution directing a federal power commission investigation of electric rates.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, and Representative Rankin, democrat, Mississippi, the authors of the inquiry, were present at the white house when Mr. Roosevelt affixed his signature.

The order provides for an investigation of electric rates charged to residential, rural, commercial and industrial consumers.

"It's effect will be far reaching," Representative Rankin said.

"In my opinion it will do more to bring justice to the consumers of electric energy than any other step yet taken with the exception of the passage of the Muscle Shoals bill.

"I predict that the publicity it will give the discriminations and excessive rates it will reveal will result in a reduction in the costs of light and power to the ultimate consumers of this country of not less than $50,000,000 a year. It may reach many times that amount."

Rail Fare Investigation.

An investigation set for April 23 of passenger fare rates in the south and west was ordered today by the interstate commerce commission as a result of the differences between the Southern railway and other roads as to rates that should be charged.

The railroads which have filed applications for permission to continue existing rates after June 1 and all other parties wishing to be heard were instructed to appear.

The principal dispute centers around the southeast for which Administrator Johnson of the NRA recently announced that railroads and bus lines had agreed on an increase in passenger fares. The Southern railway bolted the conference which was held in New Orleans and filed an application with the commission for permission to continue charging 1½ cents a mile for coach fares and 2½ cents a mile for Pullmans. Other southeastern carriers filed an application for permission to charge 2 cents in coaches and 3 cents in Pullmans.

SENATE ACCEPTS COTTON REPORT

Bankhead Control Bill Is Sent to House For Final Action.

WASHINGTON, April 14—(AP)—The senate today agreed to the conference report on the Bankhead cotton bill, sending it to the house for final congressional action.

The report represented an adjustment of differences between the two branches on this controverted legislation. The vote was 39 to 28.

Despite warnings of a political revolution in the south in resistance to the measure, it received the senate's endorsement for the second time.

Quick house approval of the bill was expected to send it to the white house for President Roosevelt's signature early next week.

New Course in Control.

The bill is designed to chart a new course in American control of agricultural production by using the taxing power to limit cotton production to 10,000,000 bales.

The conference report struck from the bill a senate amendment to exempt from the tax the first six bales grown by each farmer.

Senator Thompson of Nebraska voted for the report and Senator Norris voted against it.

Norris Proposal To Bar Politics In HOLC Stricken

WASHINGTON, April 14—(AP)—Senate and house conferees today agreed on the bill to guarantee the principal of Home Owners' Loan corporation bonds after striking out the Norris amendment to bar politics in selecting employes of the corporation.

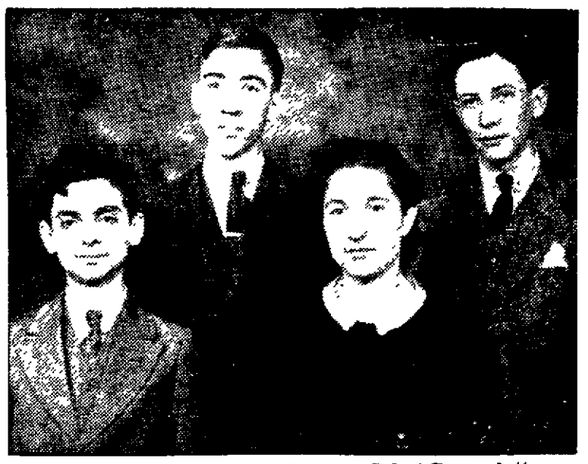

The amendment by Senator Norris, republican Nebraska was advocated by President Roosevelt. It was approved by the senate but eliminated by a house committee. The house refused to instruct its conferees to insist on its retention.

The bill now goes back to the house for action on the conference agreement

Omaha Tech Beats Trenton To Win Fourth State Debate Championship

Omaha Technical high school was crowned Nebraska state high school debate champion when it scored a 3-0 victory over Trenton in the tournamnet finals held in Morrill hall Saturday morning. Tech upheld the negative of the proposition, "Resolved, that the United States should adopt the essential features of the British system of radio control and operation."

Upholding the affirmative side of the proposition for Trenton, Oliver DeGarmo and Melvin Bowman contended that the present system of radio control and operation in America was inherently defective because it was privately owned and operated and because of the insecurity of finance.

Advocate Few Stations.

They advocated a system in which, they said, all interference due to the more than 600 stations now operating in the United States would be done away with. This would be done, they contended, by reducing the number of stations to approximately 20 and increasing the power to approximately 50,000 watts, which would make it possible for listeners all over the country to hear them.

Louis Hartz, 15-year-old sophomore, and Fannie Witkin, Tech's negative debaters, argued that the present system of radio control was preferable to any government control or ownership. They pointed out that radio existed primarily for the entertainment of the listeners. One of their most effective arguments was that under government control, politics would enter in and that censorship would destroy freedom of speech.

Fourth Tech Title.

This year's championship is the fourth that Tech has won since 1920, when team tournaments were started. Tech won in 1923, 1926,

MINIMUM WHEAT EXPORT PRICE PLAN APPROVED

Method of Improving Market to Be Submitted To Governments.

ROME, April 14—(AP)—The world wheat advisory commission today approved a system of minimum wheat export prices as a method of improving the export market.

The system will be recommended to the governments represented here.

The vote came as a surprise to the delegates, who believed they would be occupied in studying a report until tonight.

The opening discussion this morning, however, revealed that the delegates in the great majority had thoroughly digested the report on export prices yesterday afternoon and did not desire to argue over it in detail.

Argentina joined with the other nations in the favorable vote despite its previous opposition. Her delegates evidently had been won over by those of other countries.

The commission made no changes in the report which provides in effect for:

Four Experts in Control.

A far flung system of minimum export prices and export quotas for wheat, with four men having the powers of economic Caesars sitting in London to open and close the floodgates of grain.

Without attempting to stipulate minimum prices, the group merely called for a committee of experts to meet in London May 4 to draw up a schedule.

However, the subcommittee did suggest that the first schedule be an increase of 5 or 10 per cent of the present price of Manitoba No. 2 wheat and other types of wheat in proportion to the export quotas.

Further, it said the adjustments made in London would be so fixed as to keep the supply strictly in accord with demand and thus not

FIRST DICTATOR LECTURE THEME

Dr. Oldfather Tells History Teachers of Augustus Caesar.

Fern McBride of Hastings New President Of Association.

Members of the Nebraska History Teachers' association discussed the application of history to modern social problems, heard Dr. Isaac J. Cox of Northwestern university declare that the possibility of world peace at present depends largely upon the United States, listened to Dr. C. H. Oldfather of the University of Nebraska describe the modern world's first dictator, and elected new officers, as they ended their twenty-second annual meeting here Saturday noon.

Officers of the association for the coming year will be Fern McBride, Hastings, president; Dr. James Lee Sellers, University of Nebraska, vice president; and Jennie Lou Piper, Lincoln, secretary-treasurer.

Dr. Oldfather's talk on "Augustus Caesar, the First Modern Dictator," was the feature of the morning session. Briefly sketching the manner in which Julius Caesar laid the ground for Augustus' assumption of

102 MILES OIL MAT INCLUDED IN 1934 ROADS

$385,200 To Be Spent On 27 Projects In New Program.

MAY 11 DATE FOR CALLING ALL BIDS

Bennet, Seward Roads To Get Six Miles Bituminous Mat.

Ten stretches of oil mat surfacing for an aggregate of 102.7 miles to cost $309,000 make up more than three-fourths of the contemplated expenditures under the first program of state highway construction for 1934, with a gross outlay of $385,200 for 27 projects of all kinds, as announced Saturday by Governor Bryan.

The governor's list also includes 11 original graveling projects for a total of 46½ miles, to cost $51,900; five sections of highway where regraveling will be done, 46.1 miles, on which the estimated expenditure is $24,300; and half a mile of concrete pavement on the rerouted Lincoln highway, U. S. No. 30, along the eastern edge of Fremont, for which approximately $17,500 will be used.

Bids on all these will be called for May 11 at the office of State Engineer Cochran.

The governor said practically all of the money spent on these 27 projects will come out of the state gasoline tax fund, inasmuch as the federal allotments made to Nebraska a year ago for work in 1933 and 1934 are nearly exhausted for work already done or contracted to be done this spring and summer.

Another letting for a somewhat smaller total, also to come out of the state's highway funds, is to follow about two weeks later, Bryan told reporters.

Two Close to Lincoln.

Among the bituminous mat projects to be awarded in the May 11 letting are two of 6 miles each on highways leading out from Lincoln. One of these will extend the present surfacing from the junction northwest of Bennet eastward on state route No. 2. Its estimated cost is $20,000.

The other will begin at what is known as the Milford turn on the D. L. D. highway, U. S. No. 6, straight west of Lincoln and run north from there to connect up with the new concreve paving this

Goedert Escapes; In Reformatory Only Two Weeks

Albert Ellsworth Goedert, 16, escaped from a field at the state reformatory shortly after 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Although the escape was reported within ten minutes after Goedert disappeared, state, county and Lincoln officers had found no trace of the youth early in the afternoon.

Supt. Gus Miller stated that Goedert was in a crew of seven boys working along the rows of a tomato patch just southeast of the institution. While the crew foreman, Charles Woods a reformatory employe, was working with four other boys at the west end of the field, Goedert left the east end of the patch and scrambled out of sight through the weeds.

A guard said he saw the youth walk into a draw, heading southward. Reformatory employes serched the vicinity in vain. Two police cruisers and several state and county officers aided in the hunt.

Goedert, who is 5 feet, 8 inches tall, was received at the reformatory March 31 of this year, from Dawson county. The youth lived at Lexington and was sentenced to one year on an auto theft conviction.

GOV. MURRAY DETERMINED TO PREVENT SALES

Sooner Executive, Acting to Halt Disposal of Property for Delinquent Taxes Advertised for Monday, Directs Arrest of Any Person Who interfers With His Order.

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 14—(AP)—National guardsmen were ordered on duty by Gov. W. H. Murray today in 11 counties to prevent the sale of property for delinquent taxes, advertised for Monday.

The guardsmen were directed to arrest and confine "as a military prisoner" the county treasurer "or any officer who interferes, or any person of any pretended authority who interferes with this order, stopping the sale as aforesaid."

An officer and three enlisted men were placed on duty in each of the 11 counties—Stephens, Garfield, Blaine Cotton, Bryan, Choctaw, Washington, McCurtain, Craig, Beaver and Major.

FILES $20,000 ALIENATION SUIT

Steelman Sues Second Husband Of His Former Wife.

A $20,000 suit involving the affections of Mrs. Amanda Steelman Jackson was filed Saturday in District court. Her former husband, Chester V. Steelman, is suing her present husband, Omar E. Jackson, charging that her affections were alienated by Jackson. Both men are railroad switchmen.

Steelman claims he and his former wife were married in 1911 at Sapulpa, Okla., and lived together until 1931, when it is alleged Jackson persuaded her to seek a divorce, it is claimed. A reconciliation is claimed to have followed and the Steelmans lived together until July 1933, when Mrs. Steelman again sued for divorce. Steelman claims the divorce was again refused, but that he was given a divorce on a cross petition Marriage of Mrs. Steelman and Jackson took place as soon as the divorce became absolute, the plaintiff alleges.

Claim is made by Steelman that Jackson began paying attention to the former Mrs. Steelman in the fall of 1928. Jackson is alleged to have given her expensive presents without knowledge of Steelman and is claimed to have told Mrs. Steelman in a telephone conversation in December, 1928, that he loved her "a million dollars worth."

After the reconciliation of the Steelmans it is claimed Jackson continued to urge Mrs. Steelman to get a divorce and marry him. Steelman claims Jackson told Mrs. Steelman he "would buy her anything her heart desired."

The petition was filed by Attorney Ralph Slocum.

HINT SHAKEUP IN LANCASTER RELIEF SETUP

Biart Promises Action Because of FERA Job Delay.

An intimation that Lancaster county's relief organization is to undergo a shakeup in part of its executive personnel and that "heads will roll" in the near future came from State Relief Director Randall Biart Saturday morning; but he said he was not quite ready to make any announcement as to what will be done along that line.

Biart was incensed over the published reports given out by County Director Herman Jobst of the work division which seemed to lay the blame for not getting men to work faster on slowness of the relief organization in certifying to his office the names of those eligible for jobs.

Promises Action Soon.

"The situation in Lancaster county is going to be straightened out very soon," Biart declared, "and you will be surprised, and maybe some others will be surprised, upon learning how it will be done."

Biart's immediate superior, Rowland Haynes, is at Washington. Telegraphic authority from him may be necessary before action can be taken.

On hearing of Biart's comments, Jobst asked that he be quoted as follows: "My office is carding out workmen in compliance with the regulations as fast as they are being cleared to this office."

County Director Jobst is under the work division of the state relief administration, headed by M. B. Jones of the state engineer's office. The work and relief divisions act together in carrying out the joint program for relief and employment.

Work Rules Received

A telegram received from National Relief Administrator Hopkins, dated April 14, says that all persons employed in the work division are to be on a schedule of not less than 6 nor more than 8 hours in any one day, and not less than 18 hours in a month. Anyone able to get along on less time than this must be put on direct relief. Total work performed in a month may be spread out or consolidated within the discretion of local administrators.

The state relief office is informed by Lancaster county workers that 4,200 men have been as-

As Rogers Sees It

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 14 — I don't know what the president caught, but that senate just by howling "Yea" caught five hundred million (that will bear a second reading $500,000,000) extra out of a gentleman called "Old Man Taxpayer."

They were just about to put on their hats to go home when they happened to think of the last 116 million. The way they got it now, when you get all through with your taxes you add an extra 10 per cent. That's the "cover charge."

But they can't do all these things they are doing without paying for 'em. As high-priced as it is to live in, I don't see anybody leaving the country.

Yours, WILL.

Joan Scott Wins County Spelling Bee, Dashes To Orchestra Contest

Winning a Lancaster county spelling contest over 48 other entrants was just the start of a busy day Saturday for 12-year-old Joan Scott of Hickman.

With the pronouncement at 11:40 o'clock in County Superintendent Jesse Correll's office that Joan had taken first in the oral division of the spelling competition, the little champion jammed a hat over a pretty blonde head and dashed off with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Scott, to make a speedy 66-mile drive to Geneva where she was to compete in the orchestra division of the southeastern Nebraska high school music contest at 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Wins On "Definitely."

Joan, who is in the seventh grade at the Hickman schools, won the oral spelling contest when her closest competitor, Louise Adams of District 96, failed on the word "definitely."

Frank Munn, 13, an eighth grader at Waverly, took firts place in the written contest to uphold honor of the boys, who entered the meet in which the girls held numerical odds of 41 to 8. Frank is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Munn of Waverly. Next in order in the written contest were: second, Vera Enright, District 108; tied for third, Sarah Henderson and June Kreiner, both of District 113; and tied for fourth, Donna Baade of District 106 and Mildred Hanson of District 131.

Fails On "Pursuing."

Frank Munn also grabbed off third place honors in the oral contest, his Waterloo being the word "pursuing." Clayton Norton of District 132 dropped on the word "isotherm" to take fourth place. Diminutive Gloria Williams of District 95, remembered by local spelling enthusiasts for a battle she put up at last year's meet to down many spellers twice her size, displayed an equally persistent attack this year, taking fifth place honors. Gloria dropped out on a brave effort to master "dilapidated."

Winners will compete in the state spelling contest to be held at Omaha in the near future. They are also expected to take part in inter-county and inter-state competitions.

signed to County Work Director Jobst for jobs, but only a few hundred of these have as yet been put to work.

Speed Certification.

Employes at the emergency relief bureau, Eighteenth and Q streets, worked until 1 o'clock Saturday morning to speed up the certification of eligible FERA workers, Mayor Fenton B. Fleming said he was told by Miss Margaret Anderson.

Fleming said he demanded that at least 1,000 men be ready for work by Monday morning, if possible. Various city officials Saturday repeated statements that they are ready to put relief workers on projects as soon as the men are assigned.

Director Jobst said he still has cards in his files of 115 men called to report on projects on April 5, 7 and 9. There are also 242 who should have gone to work on April 10, 11 and 12, who have not called for their cards.

A timekeeper leaving Mr. Jobst's office told newspapermen that two men who should have reported for work on April 7, reported on the project Saturday morning, claiming they did not receive their notices from the emergency bureau until late Friday evening.

Men who do not report for work will be eliminated from the relief rolls, they are warned in notices from the bureau.

Veterans Complain.

Former servicemen are complaining against the scarcety of veterans on relief, who have been given employment under the FERA, it was learned Saturday. An investigation by members of Lin oln post No. 3, American legion, and Charles A. Fraley post, No. 1450, V. F. W., disclosed Saturday that only 61 veterans are among the more than 1,750 men who have been carded to jobs.

According to Director Jobst, his office will be able to handle the "flood of names" which he hopes will be certified to him from the relief bureau Monday morning.

Seventy-eight men were carded out Friday. Of these 39 were sent to the city examining board, and five to the county. The rest were ordered to report to the capitol and city hall for office work. Of the 39 ordered to report for physical examination, 37 reported and 34 were accepted.

ent agricultural situation, the things that are being done to remedy it, and suggested courses of action for the future.

Dean W. W. Burr, speaking on "The Present Agricultural Situation," ascribed the farmers' difficulties of the present day largely to the loss of foreign markets and lessened consumption of farm products. "The farmer still finds himself in a serious situation," he said, "because the income from his land is not sufficient to meet necessary expenses."

W. H. Brokaw, director of the agricultural extension division, in his talk on "Things That Are Being Done to Remedy the Present Situation," turned his attention to the AAA program. "The AAA is doing away with surplus," Brokaw asserted, "and is democratic, for it is co-operative, voluntary, and is built upon the recommendations of producers."

He dismissed the idea of regimentation as a solution, saying, "the thought of regimentation to me is un-American and the present state and national control is only a matter of direction, with local control the most important part of the program. The future will lead to decentralization."

Remove Restrictions.

Prof. H. C. Filley of the department of rural economics, cited the decrease in farm exports as the large part of the current day's problem and said farmers must insist that trade restrictions be removed so other countries can pay for our produce with the goods they produce most advantageously.

"We have been using up the fertility of the soil," he declared, taking a long-time point of view, "and we have not been giving due reference to future needs. Rough land should be taken out of cultivation."

Professor Filley also said that freight rates, which are about 41 per cent higher than pre-war, while the price of farm products is below pre-war, should be reduced.

The afternoon program included the talks:

"Reports of the Theodore Roosevelt country life commission" by Dean W. N. Delzell, Peru State Teachers' college; "Good Reading On The Farm," Arthur Peterson, Oakland; "Beautifying the Farmstead," Dr. C. C. Wiggans, college of agriculture; "The Child in the Country," Mrs. Ray Kellingarger, Anselmo; "The Advantages of Country Life," Mrs. S. P. Davis, Syracuse.

HEARING SET.

A hearing on the complaint of a number of west Lincoln patrons against the Iowa-Nebraska Light & Power company was set for next Friday by the state railway commission Saturday. C. W. Miller and a number of other rural Lancaster county patrons of the company allege that it is still making service charges barred by a 1933 statute.

side of Seward on state route No. 2. This will provide an all-paved combination route from Lincoln to Seward. The amount set aside for the 6-mile link is $21,000.

All the rest of the bituminous surfacing will be done in western and northwestern Nebraska. Much of the gravel needed for mixing the composition was purchased and dumped on the highways last fall.

Governor Bryan said the program as laid out will close several paving gaps now on the Lincoln highway in western Nebraska, leaving only one of 30 miles east of Paxton, one of 10 miles between Bushnell and Kimball, and one of 10 miles between Brule and Big Springs. The Paxton section has been graded and graveled at a cost of $100,000, and concrete paving will be done there out of the next federal money appropriated for Nebraska, Bryan said.

Following is the list of projects set for bidding on May 11:

Hastings Salesman Hero Of Fatal Conflagration; Man Who Shot Truckers Is Given Preliminary

BURNS FATAL TO FALLS CITY BABE

Residence Is Fired By Overheated Hot Air Conductor.

Salesman Crawls Into Blazing House and Carries Child Out.

FALLS CITY, Neb., April 14—Shortly after the death of May Maureen Kennedy, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ival Kennedy of Falls City, in a hospital here last night from burns, Fire Chief Mosiman said an investigation showed a fire at the Kennedy home probably started from an overheated hot air conductor.

At the time of the blaze, Friday, firemen epressed the opinion that the furnace had exploded. Mosiman said a pipe, leading from the furnace to the hallway above, was practically lying on a large pile of trash. He said the pipe was broken when he made his investigation.

Ira Levering of Hastings, a salesman, was treated for the burns on his hand he suffered when he recued the child from its crib in the burning home. He was driving down the street when he was attracted by the screams of the baby's mother.

Crawls Into Room.

Mrs F. W. Kennedy, the child's grandmother, was making frantic efforts to tear the screen from the window in an attempt to reach the baby. Levering halted his car and rushed into the house. At the same time Kenneth Gaither, who lived in the house broke the window with a chair and Levering crawled into the flame and smoke filled room.

Levering was unable to see the baby but soon found her by her cries. The crib was completely enveloped in flames. Picking up the baby, he felt his way back to the window and handed her to others outside.

Meanwhile, the child's mother, who had been trapped on the second floor of the blazing house, had crawled down a ladder from the roof to safety. She escaped with minor burns, as did the grandmother.

The grandmother discovered the blaze after smelling smoke in the basement. As she opened the basement door, the flames shot out and she fled from the house, the blaze immediately filled the room.

Mrs. Gaitner, who was in the house, was able to make her escape down the stairway before the fire had gained much headway. Most of the contents of the large house was destroyed. The loss was covered by insurance.

Cody Appointed To Oklahoma City Post

Lincoln Man Becomes Assistant Branch Manager for J. I. Case Company.

James Paul Cody of Lincoln has been appointed assistant branch manager at Oklahoma City by the J. I. Case Co., B. E. Mead, Lincoln branch manager, announced Saturday.

Cody, who is 31 years old, is believed to be the youngest man to attain this rank in the nationwide Case company system. Cody returned Friday night from an instruction period at the factory, and is expected to start work in Oklahoma City Monday.

Mrs. Cody is to leave Sunday for Hartington with her father, State Senator J. P. O'Furey, and will visit there for a few weeks before joining her husband in Oklahoma.

Cody started working for the Case company during summer vacations while a youth, and upon his graduation from the University of Nebraska about five years ago was given a full-time position. The Cody home has been at 2515 Washington street.

NEW BOND CALL BY MORGENTHAU

Continued Financing by Orthodox Methods Indicated.

WASHINGTON, April 14—(AP)—A policy of orthodox financing is indicated, observers believed today, by the administration's latest move to cut interest charges on the huge public debt.

With the approval of President Roosevelt and the cabinet, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau called $1,200,000,000 worth of Fourth Liberty bonds for redemption next October 15.

Offer New Bonds.

It was noted that the announcement yesterday read that between now and October 15, the bondholders may be offered a chance to swap their securities for other "interest-bearing obligations." This lent support toaforecast of a continuation of orthodox financing. The Thomas inflation amendment would allow the president to issue non-interest bearing money to retire the public debt.

In selecting the bonds to be called, Morgenthau made the choice by lot. He picked from a glass jar a paper cylinder which named for redemption in six months those bonds with serial numbers ending in the digits 8 or 2.

At present, interest on the outstanding public debt of $26,182,000,000 averages around 3 per cent, but ranges from the 4¼ peak on Fourth Liberties and some treasury bonds to 0.07 on a few 91-day bills — the cheapest rate ever paid by the government.

Thus in its call for redemption of the Fourth Liberties, the treasury will cut its interest charges considerably.

$1,031,000,000 Conversions.

The new call coincided with Morgenthau's announcement that subscriptions on the treasury's April 15 conversion offering of 3¼ per cent 10-12 year bonds came to $1,031,000,000. Of a billion in Liberties called for April 15, $797,000,000 were exchanged for the new securities. Of $244,234,600 in 3 per cent notes maturing May 2, $234,000,000 were exchanges.

On the transaction, the government stood to gain more than $7,000,000 annually in interest costs.

LEG IS BROKEN.

CORTLAND, Neb., April 14.—John Kroeger, farmer living near here, suffered a broken leg and other injuries when his foot was caught in a disc while working in the field.

Flies Nine Miles Up.

Renato Donati, Italian war ace, flew a specially constructed plane over Rome until his altitude meter registered 14,515 meters—about 47,560 feet, or more than nine miles. It was believed his flight established a new altitude record for airplanes.—(AP) Photo.

Methodist Sorority Holding Three Day Sessions On Campus

The first meeting of a three day Alpha Kora session, sponsored by Zeta chapter of Kappa Phi, national Methodist sorority, was held at Ellen Smith hall Friday evening with nearly 100 delegates from Kansas and Oklahoma colleges in attendance. Miss Miriam Knoer, Minneapolis, a national Kappa Phi officer, spoke briefly.

Saturday's program opened with an 8 o'clock breakfast at the Y. W. C. A., followed by a noon meeting at the same place. At 7 o'clock, a banquet will be held at University club, when Miss Knoer and Mrs. Howard Le Sourd, Boston, will be the principal speakers.

A Sunday morning breakfast meeting will be followed by church services at St. Paul Methodist church, and a noon dinner at Ellen Smith hall.

Miss Margaret Wiener, national grand president of Kappa Phi, will be toastmistress at the banquet, and Miss Luvicy Hill will preside at the general sessions.

Y. M. Circus Closes With Performances Before Large Crowd

The "big tent" bulged from top to bottom at the "Y" gymnasium Friday night, as the twenty-second annual Y. M. C. A. circus closed its two day stand. The circus followers were even more numerous and more appreciative than Thursday evening, when nearly 400 turned out.

Arthur Elliott, one of the new Friday attractions, drew the admiration of the crowd with his trick harmonica playing—including hand-walking and tooting simultaneously.

The other ring performers appeared on Friday's card, including Jean Swift, "Queen of the Big Top," the Willard brothers of Beatrice in their triple-bar act, Betty Gilbertson's twelve dancers, the eight clumsy clowns, little Jackie Herman with his song and dance act, a revolving ladder act by three Beatrice youths, John Wells, Ernest Wishman and Phil Bitting, and Bobby Kitchen, 6, and his father, James, who held the audience with their acrobatics.

Children, Adults Weep And Laugh At "Peter Pan"

Polly Gellatly Plays Lead In Children's Theater Show.

With a fairly large audience composed of almost as many adults as children, Peter Pan was presented for the first time at the Junior league Children's theater, Friday evening.

The children were delighted, the adults were entertained as one by one the allgorical scenes were unfolded. There were tears in the eyes of some of the little ones over the wos of Pter Pan, and even the grown-ups felt a pang or two now an dthen—over the little lost boys without any mother—when Tinker Bell almist-but-not-quite died, her life saved by the vigorous clapping of hands in the audience, and over the young mother whose infants had literally flown from the nursery.

Miss Gellatly Plays Lead.

Of course Peter Pan, played by Polly Gellatly, was the center of attention. Big round eyes on this side of the footlights, watched with enchantment, mingled with just a little awe, as Pan flew through the window of the nursery looking for his shadow, and flew about here and there as easily as could be.

Miss Gellatly did a clever piece of work in the title role. To her went unuttered but heartfelt thanks from the juvenile portion of the audience for bringing the beloved character of Pan closer than the story book.

And then there was Nana, the St. Bernard, played by Miss Mary Katherine Throop. Nana was a constant source of amusement to the audience in the first and last acts. But even Nana, four-footed and shaggy, the guardian of the nursery, had her sad moments. She wept in the first act, much to the glee of the youngsters present, when her feelings were hurt, and mourned in the last act when the children could not be found.

Mrs. Walter Gardner made a most attractive and charming young mother, and playing opposite her as the father of Wendy, John and Michael was Dwight Perkins.

Little Boys Good.

The little lost boys were good, very good—the Indian braves, while not on the stage a great deal, were most impressive, and the mermaids were all that mermaids should be. Trulo of New York, winner in 1932

The audience, naturally, saw more of Wendy, John and Michael than it did the other children. Lois Patterson (who is really grown up as Wendy, and Mark Dulin as John, were a delight, but Norman Walt, jr., as Michael was positively intriguing. He never missed a word nor a cue, and carried off his performance wit ha naturalness and casualness that would rival Jackie Cooper.

One really should give some thought to the direction of the play, and the stage sets. Peter Pan is quite a pretentious production, and considering the smallness of the Temple theater stage, the effect that had to be accomplished with the least possible to work with, it was exceptionally well odne.

The performance was repeated Saturday morning, and will be given for the last time Saturday eveing.

The cast is as follows:

Nana	Mary Kay Throop
Michael	Norman Walt, Jr.
Mrs. Darling	Mrs. Clorence Gardner

TWO BADLY HURT IN CAR ACCIDENT

TECUMSEH, Neb., April 14—(AP)—Robert Meade, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Meade, and Lloyd R. Richards, high school instructor at Tecumseh, were injured seriously, and Lyle Roberts and Charles Gardner were slightly hurt when the Roberts automobile upset northeast of here. The instructor and the high school boys were returning from Auburn. A blowout may have caused the accident.

Parents Of Jack Matthews Married Sixty-four Years

OMAHA, April 14—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Tiram Matthews of Omaha, Friday celebrated the 64th anniversary of their marriage. They were married on Friday, April 13, 1870, and observed their 58th anniversary on Friday, April 13, 1928. Among those who attended the celebration were four sons, Will C. and C. L. and Q. Matthews of Omaha, and Jack Matthews of Lincoln.

Ruby Keeler Suffers Nervous Shock From Bandit Scare in Home

HOLLYWOOD, April 14 — (AP) — Mrs. Al Jolson, who is Ruby Keeler of the cinemas, was under treatment for nervous shock today following a burglar scare at the Jolson home.

The prowler entered the house while Miss Keeler and her mother were in an upstairs sitting room. He fled when the actress, hearing him, gave an alarm.

Police, arriving shortly afterward, found Miss Keeler hysterical from shock.

Her husband, the comedian, is in New York.

(Special to The Star)

DESHLER, Neb., April 14—Next Tuesday, Deshler will hold a special election for the purpose of voting on the question of issuing bonds to the amount of $29,000 for the construction of an electric lighting system. At present the town is supplied light and power by the Southern Nebraska Power Co.

"Eggsact" Heave of Hen Fruit Messes Up Young Ladys Coiffure

Friday the thirteenth may have had nothing to do with it, but one Lincoln young lady was convinced that at least "ham" actors are not the only ones who receive eggs—gratis.

As one of the requirements at an initiation picnic at a Lincoln park Friday evening, the initiates were compelled to push an egg a certain distance—pushing with their nose.

One initiate, who had enough egging for one evening, found an overlooked "Cackleberry" as the party was breaking up. Not wishing to take it home, she unthinkingly heaved it widly in the direction of a picnic table—where other picnickers were holding forth.

P. S. The shot was "eggsactly" wrong, for it landed in a huddle on a fair one's head.

DANAHER BOUND OVER FOR TRIAL

Young Farmer Pleads Not Guilty to Shooting Charge.

DAVID CITY, Neb., April 14—(AP)—Francis Danaher, 22 year old David City farmer, pleaded not guilty at his preliminary hearing here Friday to charges of assault with intent to do great bodily injury, and was bound over to the District court. He was released on $2,500 bond.

The charges are the result of the woudning of William Ritterbursh, 52, Garrison trucker, and his son Ronald, 17, near the Danaher farm April 2. The father was in critical condition in a David City hospital for several days but is recovering.

The son was in court Friday as a witness for the prosecution. The defense offered no testimony. Danaher's trial will not be held until the District court convenes again next fall.

The Ritterbush men were en route to Omaha with some livestock when their trailer overturned and spilled its load. The truckers herded the stock into the Danaher farm yard, and being unable to arouse the Danahers, fixed the trailer and began reloading the stock.

Danaher awakened, saw the men, thought they were grain thieves and shot. After wounding the elder Ritterbush in the chest and face, and wounding the son in the face, he took them to hospital.

"Indian Love Charm" Cantata Is Given By Junior High Chorus

Presenting "Indian Love Charm," a cantata in six scenes, under the direction of Miss Ruth E. Haberly, the students of Twenty-sixth and O junior high school pleased an audience of more than 500 at the Lincoln high school auditorium Friday evening.

The presentation, an Indian choral work by Charles Wakefield Cadman, was dramatic and most interesting—the effect being realized by scenic decoration and by clever costuming, as well as by the excellent selections by a chorus of 83 voices.

Miss Winifred Howell served as director of drama, and Ardeth Pierce and Joan Green were accompanists on the piano and flute. Student accompanists were Maxine Maddy, Mildred Foreman and Norma Jean Campbell.

The plot centered about the son of an Indian chief, Do-no-ya, who was denied love because his tribe had lost its love charm—taking him through the trials of acquiring the "all-of-love charm of spring."

Characters
Indian maid	Vivian McCauley
Indian woman	Lois McCracken
Brave	Lee Tunberg
Indian chief	Tom Beaty
Old warriors	Francis Massie, Robert Marshall, Delwin Trumbo.
White chief	David Patterson
White girl—ghost maid	Lucille Carre
Do-no-ya as a youth	Clyde Vryheid
Do-no-ya as a brave	Leroy Farmer
Indian maid who brings love chair	Mabel Pierson
Young warrior	Bob Harris

GIVEN LIFE TERM

GERING, Neb., April 14—(AP)—Bert Williams, 40, negro, of North Platte Friday was sentenced to life imprisonment by District Judge Carter for the murder of Joe Camper, 43, a negro, in Scottsbluff last March 21. A District court jury convicted Williams of first degree murder April 7 and fixed the sentence at life.

PASTOR RETIRES.

John C. Kipp's Body Discovered In Home By Grand Island Boy

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., April 14—(AP)—The body of John C. Kipf, a veteran in the service of the Union Pacific and until recently a resident of Beatrice, was discovered in a house here this morning by a boy. County Attorney Mullen ordered an autopsy.

Death apparently had occurred some time Friday. Mr. Kipf, authorities believed, was stricken suddenly and survived only long enough to scrawl a note, directed to a son, Roy, 20, at Beatrice, asking that the latter "take care of me."

In the service of the Union Pacific thirty years, Mr. Kipf was assigned as an engineer several months ago on the run between here and Valparaiso.

Surviving at Beatrice are his wife and three sons, Roy, Freddie, 16, and Lewis 14.

Harris, who appeared here last October, will speak at eight meetings which will be for both high school and university students, churches and labor groups. The organization of which Harris is director, with headquarters at Washington, is sponsored by the National Council for the Prevention of War.

Lincoln Police Find 2 High-Powered Beer Samples During Probe

Police investigations of beer sold in Lincoln has netted at least two samples with alcoholic content in excess 3.2 per cent by weight or 4 per cent by volume, according to Lloyd Chapman, deputy city attorney. One sample, he said contained 4.5 per cent by volume, and the other 4.85 per cent, according to tests by the state chemist.

A decision on prosecution will not be reached until after the investigations have been completed.

TEACHERS MEET AT PAWNEE.

PAWNEE CITY, April 14 — Mrs. Alberta Ballance, county superintendent of Pawnee county held an all-day teachers meeting in the high school building here Saturday. Rural school demonstrations of a rural school chorus and a health play were presented by Mildred Rhine and her pupils of District 43 and Ruth Roberts and her pupils of district 11. Miss Chloe C. Baldridge, state director of rural education spoke on "Rural School Activity Program" and "Essentials Contributing to Pupils' Success." Miss Edna Elpass spoke on "Little Classics for Oral Interpretation." Miss Horton presented plans for county health day. County wide plans for the year's remainder were outlined by Mrs. Ballance.

WILLIAMS PAROLED.

OMAHA, April 14—(AP)—Gordon Williams, Omaha, who "borrowed" a parked car several weeks ago and abandoned it after discovering a baby asleep in the back seat, was paroled for two years in District court Friday. Williams was first charged with auto theft but the charge was changed to joy riding on his promise to plead guilty.

TEACHERS RETAINED.

DR. COX TELLS POLISH PROBLEM

State History Teachers Hear Northwestern Uni. Professor.

"The greatest difficulty Poland has had through all the ages has been to retain its boundaryless territory and it may be that difficulty which may wreck the peace of all Europe," Dr. Isaac J. Cox, Northwestern university professor who attended the International Historical conference in Warsaw, last summer, told 55 members of the Nebraska State History Teachers association in the University club Friday night.

"Poland," Dr. Cox declared, "has no more of a natural boundary than exists between Kansas and Nebraska. For countless ages, the various larger countries have been fighting among themselves over the division of Poland's territory and even now, some of them are casting covetous eyes at the republic set up by the Versailles treaty following the World war."

Dr. Cox said that he was rather inclined to agree with the Polish people, "who maintain that they must have a large standing army because the countries on each side of them desire the Polish territory."

Describing the Poland of today, Dr. Cox declared that Marshal Pilsudski is the driving force. "One of Poland's greatest problems is the Jewish problem," he declared. "What Poland will do or can do to dispose of the problem and thus stop the oppression of the Jews remains to be seen. I believe that in the solution of this problem lies the answer to the solution of many others."

LARGE BARN BURNS.

NERVOUS MR. LAWRENCE.

DAVID LAWRENCE is the latest to develop an aggravated case of the heebie jeebies over the prospect of a muzzled press. So nervous is Mr. Lawrence that he goes a long way to establish his case.

He picks out a blithering idiotic remark by Donald Richberg, the solemn-faced legal counsel for the NRA, whose responsibilities, burdens and worries apparently are having their effect. Mr. Richberg is quoted by Lawrence as expressing the view that the press shall not reflect even accurately the shifting, changing, and highly unstable policies of the different agencies of government, because to do so, in his judgment, is "playing upon the taut nerves and raw prejudices of our bewildered and long-suffering victims of economic ill health." If Mr. Richberg said that, he can go jump in the lake. The right to print is a constitutional guarantee. It is a part of the newspaper code, due to similar frenzied fear on the part of other easily excitable journalists.

It isn't really of a great deal of importance what Mr. Richberg thinks. He's merely another lawyer holding a public job, and in our judgment, attempting earnestly to discharge it. But neither he nor any one else has suggested the New Deal abrogated the coordinate plan of federal government. Neither he nor any one has claimed that the judciary has abdicated or surrendered its right to interpret provisions of the recovery program in accordance with the constitutional rights set forth in America's organic law.

In order to make more than political capital of this issue of the freedom of the press, those who are suffering seriously from chills must establish that the legislation which has been enacted actually curtails the powers of the supreme court of the United States, and its subordinate divisions Mr. Richberg might desire very easily to muzzle the press. Scores of other bureau heads, members of congress, public officials generally, smarting under criticism, might come to the conclusion that the time was ripe to clamp down upon freedom of expression through the columns of the newspapers. But what of it? Either the judiciary has been hypnotized, it is incompetent, or it has lost its devotion to principles of freedom before there is any real foundation for fear. Now, just what basis is there for believing that the courts are about to betray American traditions? We haven't any fear if and when this issue is presented to the bench, the rights of American newspapers to criticize any step in the recovery program will be vindicated. As recently as six months ago, this principle was affirmed vigorously and clearly in the case arising in Minnesota which, while not involving the recovery program, nevertheless touched upon the same question.

We have plenty of faith in the courts, so that it is impossible to become alarmed or disturbed over the prospect of censorship from Washington. If our acquaintance with newspaper publishers and newspaper editors furnishes any criterion, we know hundreds who gladly would go to jail to furnish a test on that issue. And any sane and sensible man, who keeps his feet on the ground, even a portion of the time, also knows it.

No doubt there are men in Washington who would like to censor the press. It isn't anything new. Theodore Roosevelt at one time kicked up quite a ruckus by attempting to deny a representative of a newspaper in Now York City access to governmental news. Mr. Coolidge ground his teeth and waxed indignant when the story of the iron horse and his daily morning gallop made its appearance. Mr. Hoover, bearing the burdens he did in the last two years of his administration, was sensitive extremely to newspaper criticism. There are times undoubtedly when Mr. Roosevelt feels a section of the press is unfair to him. But he has no desire to suppress criticism; he has said so publicly, and that should end it.

Of all the sham issues ever trumped up, this criticism of the NRA on the ground that it will destroy the freedom of the press wins the derby. Either the courts have broken down, the constitution has been destroyed, or there is nothing to it. And we do not believe that in any of the emergency program, such has taken place or is likely to take place.

SOL DISAPPEARS.

REAR ADMIRAL BYRD has but eight days of sun—or had eight Thursday when he reported to his base camp, Little America, in the Antarctic. In less than a week, feeble Sol will sink below the horizon to remain away for nearly two months. But during his absence, Byrd will go about his duties observing wind and cold and other climatic phenomena of the Antarctic.

Perhaps his decision to remain alone during his vigil is a wise one. It takes remarkable discipline to forgo sunlight. Let it develop into a week or ten days of cloudy weather and watch what happens to people. They may have been hoping for rain, or for a break during a period of heat, but the disappearance of Sol for seven days is enough to cure them. The long winter nights at both the North and South poles are trying on men's nerves. It isn't solely a question of cold and snow and ice, of imprisonment in narrow quarters and greatly restricted freedom. It is a matter of missing an old friend, whose presence is more vital to an individual's morale than he himself is willing to admit, or perhaps realizes.

MORE OF THE SAME KIND.

AS CITIZENS of Nebraska get better acquainted with the strange and wonderful provisions of the new tax law in this state they have more and more reason to feel disgust over the work of their legislators in contriving and passing such a measure.

Here is the latest: At Omaha, officials and employes at the Douglas county courthouse who had to wait some ten weeks for their pay until after new tax money began coming into the treasury, and who got their belated salary warrants after April 1, find that they must whack up about 3½ per cent of their overdue wages.

If they had been paid just before April 1, the assessment date, and had the cash on hand at that date, they would have got off with the comparatively low rate of one-half of 1 per cent just one-seventh of what they must contribute now. One would think it was enough of a hardship to be compelled to string along for two and a half months without pay; but on top of that they find themselves penalized 600 per cent in taxes, though no fault of their own.

The probability is that most of the back wages which the Douglas county employes have just drawn will go to square up bills they ran up during the payless interval. If they had drawn their compensation regularly, most of it would have been paid out before April 1, and they would have had little or no balance left to pay taxes on. But just because the county was hard up and they got caught in possession of the money after that date, they are "soaked" for an unjust tax, the same as though they were rolling in wealth.

It is estimated that this pretty mess will cost the clerks and stenographers of Douglas county an average of $8 a head. Probably when the legislature was framing up its wierd enactment these people had no idea it was going to hit them. In that respect they are in the same boat with most everyone else. Nobody dreamed that any bunch of lawmakers would cook up a statute sticking seven times as much tax on anybody who has money owing to him, as is specified where the money has already been collected and is on hand April 1.

There is not an assessor in Nebraska who doesn't realize the rank injustice of this act; and since assessors are average human beings it is not likely that they will go to extreme lengths to subject their neighbors and constituents to its harsh iniquities. It is this kind of legislation which soon becomes a dead letter, and deservedly so. There will probably be a great deal more tax evasion under the present act than was practiced before its passage.

S. F. 310 UPHELD.

IT WAS a decision of supreme importance handed down by the high court of Nebraska Saturday, upholding the validity of S. F. 310, enacted during the last legislative session.

Under this law, all the major public works projects for the state were organized, and the principle it involves in establishing the revenue bond likewise affected a large number of the smaller ones. Every objection which could be raised legally was presented in the test case. In all, twenty separate grounds were set forth to establish the unconstitutionality of the measure. And the supreme court overruled each one.

This, apparently, disposes of the final obstacle ahead of the Columbus and the Sutherland projects, which have been approved already, and as soon as the detailed plans are available, work may start. And it also disposes of any doubt over the authority of districts to organize with relation to the North Loup, the Middle Loup, the Tri-County, the Benkelman-Haigler-Arickaree, the Frenchman, and Blue creek.

CHINESE HELPLESSNESS.

PRESS reports say that an army of 2,000 bandits laid siege to a walled city in northern China, capturing the place and after murdering great numbers of the inhabitants, left with vast quantities of loot with the city in flames. For two years this same band of outlaws has been ravaging that section of the country, and at one time it threatened Peiping.

The seeming utter helplessness of the Chinese government; its inability to do anything to curb the depredations of the bandit armies which roam at will over the country, dealing out death and destruction at will, gave Japan its excuse for conquering Manchuria and Jehol and caused many people throughout the world to sympathize with the island empire in its war of conquest.

The situation in that part of the country still in the hands of the Chinese government seems to be little if any improved; in fact this latest foray is one of the worst yet recorded, and there appears little prospect of anything better. It is discouraging to say the least, and the world wonders what is to be the ultimate outcome.

Lovers of justice naturally want the Chinese to retain control of their own affairs, and few in the Occident want the Japanese to take charge of the entire Orient. But something of that kind is likely to occur if the situation in the unwieldy old nation is not radically improved. What amounts to a state of anarchy exists over a tremendous area, while civilized mankind looks on with pity, mingled with horror.

If Japan could take Manchuria and Jehol it can likewise take other portions of China, and who is to say "hands off!" The league of nations condemned the previous actions, but that did not deter the Japanese. They were out to get the territory they wanted and they got it. Conditions which gave the excuse for the previous conquests still exist, so it would not be surprising if the islanders were to strike again. The only possible deterrent is the fear that Russia might take advantage of the move and attack the Japanese, and even that might not be effective.

QUESTION.
Bristol, Va.
To what man of science would you give first place for intellectual honesty, especially with reference to views on the origins of life and man?

ANSWER.

To Charles Darwin. Intellectually he had no superior, and his infinite variety and accuracy of learning attracted the best minds. But the veneration felt for his endowments as a scientific philosopher was intensified by his zeal for truth. Huxley, who knew Darwin intimately, said of him. "Acute as were his reasoning powers, vast as was his knowledge, marvelous as was his tenacious industry, brave as was the struggle he waged against ill health; these were not the qualities which impressed those admitted to this friendship. But a certain and almost passionate honesty by which all his thoughts and actions were irradiated as by a central fire; this was his rarest and greatest endowment."

As surely as Newton's discovery of the law of gravitation established order in the place of chaos and laid a lasting foundation for all future study of the heavens, so likewise did Darwin's discovery of the law of natural selection establish a firm basis for all future study of nature.

The value of his researches lies not only in their effect on scientific progress, but the stimulus they gave to mental and moral integrity. Men who compromise with untruths whether in the church, the state or the schools, are the foes of human progress. How often we have seen reality and evidence sacrificed to mere propaganda! And what disastrous results this tampering with known facts breeds! My own profession has need to remember in the light of Darwin's inflexible candor the futility and mischief wrought by ignorant attacks upon one who shares with Pasteur the triple crown of scientific fame.

QUESTION.
Buffalo, N. Y.
I think out religious questions by and for myself, and I have concluded that the future life is impossible. How do you meet my case?

ANSWER.

I am persuaded that no individual can follow your course and reach your conclusion as being the only one most consonant with reason. In other words, you cannot logically consider this question of survival after death solely by itself and determine your views upon it regardless of the whole issue religion involves.

If, for instance, a man is convinced that the Christian view of the universe is true, his faith in personal survival after death is part of a system of beliefs which stand or fall together. If, again, as in your case, a skeptical person denoes that survival, he must logically deny the rational significance of the universe. The human story so completely dominates the situation that if it ends in dust at death this ignoble finish prompts the query, Why does life exist at all and for what definable purpose? I suggest that you ponder this in your solitary reflections.

Again, the whole recognized scheme of life's values breaks down if man and the universe have no ascertainable meaning. Tell me that I exist in a marvelously prepared material world to equip my spiritual faculties for the higher life that world presupposes, and the explanation is at least reasonable and stimulative. Tell me, however, that I am a mere by-product of an insensate and mechanized process, doomed to perish with it, and I naturally ask why all this pother which the conscious soul within me raises?

If soul is the key to the universe, then the cosmic process has ethical significance and anything which elevates man's spiritual nature is supremely important. But there is neither logical meaning nor moral significance in masses of dead matter whirling in space which have somehow managed to produce living personalities.

I advise you to keep on thinking and to check up your results with those reached by others who think in accordance with all the facts in the case.

QUESTION.
Washington, D. C.
Just what is the significance of the term "supernationalism?" As a good American I resent its implication when used to belittle our patriotism.

ANSWER.

It is applied to those extreme types of nationalism which are rabid forms of patriotism. A good American is just what you and the rest of us ought to be. Genuine affection for our republict manifests itself in generous and sympathetic regard for every loyal citizen whatever his color, creed or condition, and is further expressed in a decent respect for his rights.

When this legitimate sentiment is perverted by economic greed, or distorted by religious intolerance, mob hysteria and racial pride it degenerates into some form of so-called supernationalism. If you desire a concrete illustration of true patriotism as contracted with supernationalism compare the public utterances of Washington, Franlin, Jefferson and Lincoln with those of Hitlerites in Germany and their imitators here. The latter demonstrate to what disasters this obsession may yet drive the word.

Extreme economic nationalism is more than a barrier to the exchange of commercial products, the maintenance of financial stability and the free interchange of ideas. It is a direct incitement to imperialism and conquest because it contains the subtle seeds of armed conflict.

Equally malignant are other symptoms of disease nationalism in its more acute stages, such as the persecution of minorities, demands for territorial expansion at the expense of neighboring states or the accumulation of excessive and illicit profits by ruthless commercial exploitation; also the fostering of militarism and the glorification of war. Since some interpret what constitutes a good American by the doctrines of Hilterism and fascism, and others by the ideals of the founders and builders of our nation, which do you choose as your standard?

GREAT AMERICAN WEAKNESS —HURRY—CAUSE OF DISEASE

So often a person says, "I wake up just as tired as when I went to bed."

An inquiry will often disclose that troublesome dreams persisted during the night. In other words, the implication is that the brain failed to stop functioning as a thinking apparatus during the hours of sleep.

Dr. Clendening

Such statements are familiar in the experience of every physician. The story will rarely be heard from one who makes a living by manual labor; it will be almost entirely confined to those who perform mental work, or who are extremely nervous, or who worry a great deal over the everyday incidents of life.

Fatigue should be divided into two classes, physical and mental. For practical purposes the two can be differentiated by a very simple test.

Physical fatigue is characterized by sound sleep which completely refreshes the individual. Mental fatigue, on the other hand, will be recognized by broken sleep, possibly dreams, tiredness on awakening.

It is important to understand this difference so that those who suffer from mental fatigue may take the necessary steps to correct it. The common causes are too much responsibility, worry, anxiety, fear, anger, sorrow excitement, or any of the major emotions to which people are exposed.

The great American weakness is hurry. A driving ambition to succeed and outstrip one's fellows. Many do not possess the necessary stamina to keep up the pace, and somewhere between the third and the fifth decade in life, begin to show unmistakable symptoms of nervous exhaustion and often of high blood pressure.

Most of us are familiar with the person who goes through life like a human dynamo, constantly eager to do more; never completely satisfied with the day's accomplishments; talks "shop" at home and with all his social acquaintances; works every day and often night; takes a vacation in a high powered automobile, driving five to six hundred miles a day, and returns home more tired than when he left.

I can hear, "Yes, that's my John."

The explosion comes always at the most inopportune time—just when John is most needs in the business. "It's simply not possible to stop and take a rest now. Can't I wait until next summer, doctor? I promise you I will rest then as long as you suggest." Just after the holidays the obituary notices record John's passing from the great American disease—high blood pressure and apoplexy.

While the cause of high blood pressure is far from proved, it is agreed that once the signs appear, life should be ordered on a quieter and less competitive basis.

The story of Ezra Jones speaks for itself:

"I just heard that old man Jones died yesterday."

"Yes, that's right."

"Rich old cuss, wasn't he?"

"Surely was."

"Wasn't very old, was he?"

"No, just 55."

"Looked older, didn't he?"

"Surely did—everybody thought he was 70."

"Promised he would go fishing with me last summer but he never got around to it."

"That's tough."

"How much did he leave?"

"Every durned cent he had."

BUSINESS AND BIGOTRY.

He didn't like a Catholic; he didn't like a Jew;
He didn't like a Spaniard or a Greek.
In private life, he told his wife, there were but very few
To whom he thought it worth his while to speak.
He didn't like a Baptist or a Methodist at all,
And he wished he'd never meet them any more.
He was satisfied to dwell in a circle very small
But he talked a different language in his store.

Be kindly to the customer and satisfy his need.
It's the dollar we are after for the till;
Don't ever show a prejudice 'gainst color, caste or creed.
The wants of every caller we must fill.
Be courteous and helpful, clerks remember one and all;
Be obliging to the customer who spends.
This little business axiom every morning please recall:
It never pays to quarrel with our friends.

I have never known a merchant who would stop to ask the creed
Or the politics of one who came to buy,
Or would scorn to take a dollar from a man of different breed,
Or would give to him an insolvent reply.
And I wonder why in private life the bigot doesn't see
In the few brief years on earth which he must spend,
That every man, no matter what his caste or creed may be,
Is usually worth having for a friend.

The Rescue

Mercy knows no rank, no class;
No sufferer will ever pass.
—Old Mother Nature

Very Carefully He Approached, So As Not To Unduly Frighten Them.

This was the worst flood anybody could remember. All up and down the Big River it had done great damage. It had swept away bridges and buildings. It had filled cellars, and in some cases had risen to the second floors of houses. Many people had been driven from their old homes. Cows and pigs and sheep had been drowned. Roads had been washed out and railroads undermined. All up and down the valley the loss to man was very great. So perhaps it is not to be wondered at that few thought of the countless other sufferers from the high water—the little people of meadows and swamps and low lands along the whole length of the Big River, very very many of whom were drowned, while great numbers were driven from their homes to hunt in strange places for food while their enemies were ever on the watch for them. Still others were carried away on logs and boards and tree trunks and other floating things.

But Farmer Brown's Boy did not forget his little friends of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest. Every spring the lower parts of the Green Forest were flooded, so he did not give the matter much thought until the water began to creep higher than he had ever seen it before. The higher it crept of course the more widely it spread. Never had he seen so much land covered with water. It was then that he began to worry about the meadow folk.

So when he got the chance he took a flat-bottomed skiff that in the summer he kept over by the Big River, but which had been brought up home for the winter and started out over the Green Meadows. Always he kept watch for hapless little people in fur held prisoners in trees or afloat on driftwood. A number of these he rescued and took to shore. It was thus that he discovered Jerry Muskrat prisoner in a tree, the same tree in which Mr. and Mrs. Quack had found him. Farmer Brown's Boy backed the boat almost to Jerry's feet, and Jerry asked no questions. He jumped down into the boat and sat on the back seat while Farmer Brown's Boy continued to row this way and that. When at last the boat approached shore Jerry dived overboard and swam straight for land.

It wasn't until late in the afternoon two days later that Farmer Brown's Boy sighted the little raft caught in the top of a small tree far out in the flood. As he approached it he whistled with amazement as he recognized Peter Rabbit and Johnny Chuck at one end and three Skunks at the other end.

Very carefully he approached, so as not to unduly frighten them, and he was careful to approach the end where Peter and Johnny sat. They didn't move. Perhaps they recognized a friend. Perhaps they had suffered so much misery that they felt that nothing worse could happen. Anyway, they sat there and looked at him dully as he fastened a rope to the raft, and then freed it from the branches holding it. Then he took up his oars and began to row, towing the raft after him. It was hard work, for the wind was against him and the raft was very heavy, but little by little they made headway. Still the Skunks remained curled at one end and Peter and Johnny sat at the other, dully staring out over the water. It wasn't until they were very near shore that Peter realized what was happening. He suddenly began to take notice.

He nudged Johnny Chuck, and Johnny began to take notice. There, drawing nearer and nearer, was the blessed land. It seemed too good to be true. Neither of them paid any attention to Farmer Brown's Boy. They had eyes only for the shore, now so near. The boat grounded. Farmer Brown's Boy pulled the raft alongside until it also grounded. The instant it touched Peter Rabbit had leaped ashore, and Johnny Chuck was at his heels. They didn't stop to say thank you. Farmer Brown's Boy poked the pile of trash in the middle of the raft, and out scampered five Mice and made for shore, to his utter astonishment for he had not known they were there. Then the three Skunks slowly and with dignity made their way ashore.

Farmer Brown's Boy began to chuckle. "It is a regular Noah's Ark" he exclaimed.

The next story: "Mrs. Peter Waits Too Long."

Judith Lane

by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: Morton Lampere has obtained an injunction against Judith Dale's plan to finish Big Tom Bevins' Rio Diablo dam, as he directed in his will. She is ready to fight Lampere and the Bevins heirs, but her husband, Norman, has told her that if she persists in going to the dam, and in spending Big Tom's money for the project instead of turning it over to Mrs. Bevins and her daughter, it may mean a parting of the ways in the Dale family.

Chapter 25.
PREPARATION.

"We won that point," said Cunard. "No man at the present time has the heart to throw three hundred men out of work if the money used to pay them isn't in chancery."

"I have the money. Big Tom gave it to me months ago for this emergency. But, Mr. Cunard, if you will place it in your name, it will save me a lot of embarrassment. It would be difficult to explain why a man gave his stenographer a hundred thousand dollars as a gift, wouldn't it?"

"It would, indeed. I'll be glad to handle it for you. Anything else?"

"Yes. Do you happen to know if the Bevins Construction Company Incorporated is hiring any stenographers?"

"We really do need one at the dam. I'd like to keep Miss Kelly here to work with me; have you someone in mind?"

"Yes," she answered earnestly, "myself."

"Is this wise?" inquired Cunard.

Judith smiled wistfully. "It's necessary. I haven't any income, and....and it's going to be imperative that I work from now on."

"You haven't any income?" inquired Cunard and looked at Judge Morgan.

"Even after the injunction is raised Mrs. Dale is not using any of the interest or dividends accruing from Bevins' business. She's turning it all back to the trust fund ....it's a bit quixotic, but I can understand her reasons for so doing and under the circumstances can't insist she do otherwise."

Cunard studied a moment then nodded his head. "I guess you're right, but it does seem a bit unusual for a girl worth as many millions as you are worth, Mrs. Dale, to be working for a comparatively small salary."

"At least it will seem more natupral to me," she said brightening. "And now about the injunction and the will contest."

"Under normal circumstances there would be no question of our winning the will contest, but with Lampere acting the way he is acting, I'm expecting some sort of trickery."

There was so much business to handle that Judith found she would not have time to return to Hillendale if she took the early evening train to San Antonio, so she spent a few precious moments telephoning Delphy.

"Pack all of my clothes, Delphy," she ordered. "Put them into my wardrobe trunks and have Lige carry them to the basement store room. Then take that one trunk down there, unpack the things, air them well, repack them and have Lige take the trunk and my hand bags....I didn't unpack them when I came in last night....and carry them to the Union Depot.

"Now, do you understand, Delphy?"

"Yas....yas-sum," came the doleful reply.

"You'll take good care of Mister Norman while I am away, won't you, Delphy?"

"But Miz Dale," there was misery in the old woman's voice, "who-alls goin' t'be lookin' after you. An' you so plump and pink. Whose a goin' t'give you yo' choc-late?"

"Goodness knows, Delphy," replied Judith, "Nobody ever tried to take care of me before I fell into your hands. Delphy, you've been wonderful to me and I won't forget it, but you mustn't worry about me, will you?"

"Nome."

"Goodbye, Delphy."

"Y'ain't gone yet," was the reply.

Judith turned from the telephone to find Judge Morgan had entered the room.

"Now that we're alone, Miss Judy," he said kindly, "I'd like to talk to you about something personal; call it legal prevention if you will. Tell me, have you and Mr. Dale decided to separate? Are you considering a divorce?"

"I don't know, Judge Morgan," she answered. "It was impossible to live there under the existing conditions. I would know things Norman's partner would like to know. Norman would know things important to our side. It was an impossible situation.

"He seems confident that Mrs. Bevins will win out eventually. He said if she didn't he would have to ask me to make a choice between himself and the money. Lampere has poisoned his mind until he looks upon me as a gold-digger."

"Did he know you were leaving for the dam?"

"Yes....he intimated I was making my choice by going."

"And you still want to go on?"

"If I stayed, knowing what I know about Lampere, I would hate myself and eventually hate Norman for being responsible for my staying."

"Of course you understand that by leaving Mr. Dale's 'bed and board' you are giving him grounds for divorce."

"Yes," and then a smile flashed across her face. "However, it took Norman two years to propose to me and I'm trusting it will take him an equal length of time to make up his mind to divorce me."

"If I can help him see Lampere as I'm beginning to know him," said Judge Morgan, "he'll be ready to apologize to you a lot sooner ... only, Miss Judith, are you going to be able to go back to Mr. Dale without holding a feeling of resentment towards him for not standing by you?"

Judith smiled again—"You'll be terribly disappointed in me, I know, but Norman's refusal to see things as I see them, makes me respect him more."

"Inconsistent and thoroughly feminine," conceded the Judge, "and now let's have dinner. Mrs. Morganis coming down, and Mrs. Cunard. We'll all have dinner together at the most prominent restaurant in town."

They had also invited Clia, and in the verbal witticisms of her friend, and the quiet understanding of the two wives, Judith found real solace.

At the depot, Judith tried to find a moment to speak to Clia, alone, and explain her decision—"Oh, forget it," said Clia. "Build your dam, then come back and if Norman won't have you, move in with me and we'll show this town what a couple of grass widows can do to it."

Jury Term Federal Court Next Monday

Thirteen Causes Set For Trial, Including Big Damage Action and Victor Seymour Case.

Seventy-four petit jurors will report in Federal court at 10 o'clock Monday morning for a jury session which is expected to last about a month. Federal Judge Munger, who has been holding court at Cedar Rapids, Ia., during the past week, returned here Saturday morning.

A habeas corpus hearing for D. Robert Burleigh, under sentence for contempt of court at Wilber, will be the first matter of the day. The hearing is scheduled for 9:30 and is expected to consume most of the morning.

The first jury case for trial is one in which the St. Joseph Stock Yards bank seeks to recover $6,414.29 on three notes from the directors of the Farmers bank of Dunbar. Defendants named are William H. Bricknell, George J. Bricknell, Leonard R. Bricknell, Carl A. Weiler, Amalie M. Weiler and Henry Griepenstroh.

Thirteen cases are docketed for the session, among them a $50,000 damage suit brought by Helen Keefe against Ralph Trickle, et al. The suit grows out of an accident last June 16, 1933, near Walton, in which Miss Keefe alleges her back was broken.

Set for May 7 is the trial of Victor Seymour of Lincoln on a charge of perjury. The case grew out of alleged misstatements made by Seymour in the "Grocer" Norris investigation here in 1930. The case was tried once previously and on June 3, 1932, resulted in a hung jury.

Electricity Transmitted By Short Wave Drives a Railway Car Seven Miles

BOISE CITY, Okla., April 14—(AP)—A vision of engineless trains driven by electricity transmitted by short wave arose today as the result of a secret experiment on the tracks of the Santa Fe railroad.

Energy sent by radio was credited with driving a small rail motor car a distance of seven miles yesterday. This test of an invention still in the experimental stage was guarded closely.

Although no description of the generating and transmitting apparatus was made public, Santa Fe officials who reported the result said that they were satisfied.

The inventor, M. C. Gregory, said that on the basis of this experiment larger apparatus capable of generating 1,000 horsepower will be built in Brooklyn, N. Y. With this, he said, he expects to operate a five-car train, without material connection of any kind between the train and the power source.

One Grand Reception
Why Not Pay Depositors?
Comic Opera Dillinger

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

The president, on his special train, pulled into Washington from his Florida fishing trip at 10 o'clock Friday morning, and everybody seemed glad to see him.

Mrs. Roosevelt was waiting at the station, with their son, Elliott, and their daughter, Mrs. Dall. They boarded the train at once.

Then a delegation of cabinet members went on board, shook hands and marched out the other end of the car. Secretary Hull was there, and Postmaster General Farley, who looked as healthy as a colored advertisement of a food for infants.

Also waiting for the train, were solemn senators. Led by Vice President Garner, there was a delegation from the house of representatives, a very big delegation. How would you like to have such a reception?

And that was only half. The marine band was there, glorious in crimson, or scarlet, or whatever the reddest red is called. It never played "Hail to the Chief" more loudly or more sweetly.

There were fresh relays of reporters, cameras, sound recorders, and plenty of sound to record.

Washington believes the McLeod bill, that would give depositors their money locked up in closed banks, the government taking all bank assets, will not be passed.

The bill's opponents say repaying national bank depositors alone would cost the government 1,500 million dollars. What of it? The people are deprived of their money because they trusted the national bank system. Has the nation no responsibility there? It could send, on a telephone call, 90 million dollars to one single Chicago bank in trouble.

Why not hear the call of millions of depositors, also in trouble? Let the government get what it can out of the closed banks' assets, pay the depositors now, and put 1,500 million dollars in circulation, immediately.

No interest-bearing bond issue would be necessary, you know.

No special bonds were printed, that night, when it was hastily decided to send 90 millions to one banker, wisely decided, if the sending prevented a panic that might have spread.

The government has no authority to print and issue currency, up to three billions now. Currency issued for bank depositors could be retired, if desired, with funds realized on closed bank assets.

The government has pumped out many billions for "relief" of various kinds. Relief for honest thrifty depositors whose money was impounded, would surely fit into the Roosevelt program.

Apart from all that, you observe that Germany has treated herself to a little moratorium, which means a stop-payment-period. Germany's exports are falling, dangerously. She should ask herself why.

Mr. John Dillinger, who shoots and runs away, and lives to shoot another day, is said to have "raided a police station, to steal a bullet proof waistcoat." Gilbert and Sullivan could have written an opera around Dillinger.

BEH ACQUITTED OF FORGERY CHARGE

DAVENPORT Ia., April 14—(AP)—Carleton D. Beh, Dse Moines investment broker, today was free of a charge of forgery of a public works application of the city of Ottumwa with intent to defraud the United States government.

A verdict of acquittal was brought in yesterday by the Federal court jury trying him here three hours and 45 minutes after it received the case from Federal Judge Charles A. Dewey.

Beh was charged with altering an application for a $60,000 grant and $140,000 loan through the PWA for construction of a viaduct at Ottumwa.

Sevcik Found Not Insane; Is Freed On Habeas Corpus Action

Robert Sevcik, 53, who had been ordered committed by the county insanity commission, won his freedom in District court late Friday in a habeas corpus action before Judge Frost. Attorneys for Sevcik claimed that witnesses who appeared before the insanity commission when Sevcik was committed were there as the result of a neighborhood quarrel.

Sevcik, a landscape gardener has been held at a residence on North Eighteenth street where patients are kept by the county until they can be received at the state hospital. County Physician R. H. Sawyer and Dr. Leland Stanley, who has charge of the temporary detention residence, testified they do not believe Sevcik is insane. Similar testimony was given by Dr. J. D. Case and Dr. B. F. Williams.

More Active Stock Market Issues Hold To Narrow Grooves; Price Changes Generally Unimportant

Exchange Close Is Fairly Steady

Trading Almost at Standstill; Dullest Since Early in January.

NEW YORK, April 14—(AP)—The stock market was almost at a standstill in today's brief session. Trading was the dullest since the early part of January. The more active issues held to narrow grooves and price changes generally were unimportant. The close was fairly steady. Transfers approximated 500,000 shares.

Both professionals and the public were inclined to hug the safety zones while waiting for developments on the Potomac. Congressional activities were still indecisive and the president's attitude toward disputed legislation was a matter of conjecture.

Equities received little encouragement from commodities, most of which milled about in a meaningless range. Grains were a bit reactionary at one time, and rubber and cotton were hesitant. Silver futures were not buoyant, although the bar metal was advanced ⅜ of a cent an ounce to 46⅜ cents. Bonds were somewhat mixed. U. S. governments, however, were firm. International dollar rates were stagnant.

Some of the metal and amusement stocks were comparatively lively. U. S. Smelting got up nearly 2 points. Cerro de Pasco was a bit higher. Warner Bros., Pathe and Loew's advanced. Packard Motors lost a trifle on a sizeable turnover. Chrysler General Motors, Nash, National Distillers and United Aircraft drifted somewhat lower. U. S. Steel and American Telephone were fairly firm. The utilities and rails did virtually nothing.

Consolidated Gas and other power and light issues apparently were not adversely affected by word that the president had signed the joint resolution directing the power commission to investigate rates charged to residential, rural, commercial and industrial consumers throughout the United States.

While the financial sector was not too well pleased with the senate tax bill boosting to new peace-time highs the levels on inheritances, gifts and corporations, the thought was expressed that the measure may undergo numerous adjustments before it finally becomes a law. There was no disposition to forecast the president's reaction to the bill.

Market analysts interpreted the president's remarks upon his arrival in Washington as indicating that he desires an early adjournment of congress. In the event that the legislative body quits by the middle of May, it is believed certain that many bills will have to be shelved. There were faint hopes that the stock exchange control measure would be among these.

Mildly bullish sentiment was still predominant in speculative quarters. It was pointed out, however, that spring business is about at its peak and may recede from here on into the summer; that advancing costs of labor and materials under the codes are tending to reduce corporate profits, and that increasing prices of manufactured goods may tend to retard sales.

Most banking circles were not surprised at the decision of the treasury to call $1,200,000,000 additional Liberty bonds for redemption on October 15. It was expected that some sort of a conversion offer would be made to holders of the new called series similar to the recent 3¼ per cent treasury issue.

The response to the exchange proposal, involving the retirement on April 15, of $1,005,000,000 of Liberties and $244,234,000 of notes maturing in May was characterized as "distinctly successful." Of these totals some $797,000,000 of Liberties and the new 3¼ per cent bonds. The treasury, $234 000,000 in notes were turned in for of course, will pay about $218,000,000 in cash to those who failed to take advantage of the conversion plan.

The British pound, in early dealings, recovered ¼ of a cent at $5.15½ and the French franc slightly higher at 6.60 cents.

Prices Dip on Grain Market

Wheat Closes Weak, ¾-⅞c Lower and Corn Is ½-¾c Down.

CHICAGO, April 14—(AP)—Pending developments at Washington about threatened legislative measures affecting security and grain exchanges, wheat operators today largely maintained a waiting attitude, and prices declined.

Coarse grains bore the brunt of selling. September delivery of oats tumbled to the bottommost figures since this season's trading in that delivery was begun.

Wheat closed weak ¾ to ⅞ cent under yesterday's finish May 48⅝@¾c, July 84¾@84⅞c. Corn ½ to ¾ cent down, May 46¾@⅞c, July 49⅝@¾c. Oats ⅞ to 1⅛ cents off, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 2 cents.

Lower prices for grains early today accompanied further liquidation on the part of holders of May contracts. Absence of rain both in domestic spring and winter wheat territory was ignored. Opening ⅛ to ¾ down, May 84½@85c, wheat later held near the initial range. Corn started at ¼ to ½ decline, and subsequently altered little.

Wheat trading a good deal of the time was much less active than yesterday, but on fractional dips in prices demand from commission houses enlarged enough to cause slight transient rallies. Heaviness of coarse grain markets, oats in particular, served as a drag on wheat. Some stop loss selling was apparent in oats, and May delivery of that grain dropped to well under 30 cents, reaching a new low since October 17, and within ½ cent of the season's bottom price record.

The wheat market made no apparent response to announcement that the world wheat advisory commission at Rome today had approved a system of minimum export prices as a method of improving export trade. It was suggested that a reason for seeming market indifference was that no definite fixed minimum prices were named. Corn was governed more at times by oats weakness than by the course of wheat.

Provisions reflected downturns of hog values.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 20,027,000 bushels, corn 10,073,000. Open interest in wheat was 113,477,000 bushels, and in corn 87,869,000.

About mid-session, wheat was ⅜ to ⅝ cent lower compared with yesterday's finish, and corn was also ⅜ to ⅝ cent down.

Corn receipts in Chicago today were 95 cars, a week ago 39, and a year ago 209.

NEW YORK BOND REVIEW.

NEW YORK, April 14—(AP)—Despite mild reactionary tendencies in some parts of the corporate list, the bond market displayed a fairly steady tone today.

U. S. governments edged up a bit more following the redemption call for another series of Liberty fourth 4¼s.

In the corporate list realizing cut fractions from recent gainers. Alleghany corporation 5s of 1950 yielded around a point and Great Northern 4½s, Milwaukee 5s, Santa Fe 4s, Armour & Co. 4½s.

International Telephone 5s, Nickel Plate 4½s, Southern Pacific 4½s, and Southern Railway 4s yielded fractions.

French government 7½s were bid up more than a point. Belgian 7s, German 7s and Poland 7s hardened. Canada 4s, Brazil 6½s, and German 5½s were slightly lower.

NEW YORK CURB REVIEW.

NEW YORK, April 14—(AP)—The curb developed a firm tone in the quiet week-end market today. A number of industrial specialties worked quietly higher and much of the light volume was in issues of that description.

Selby Shoe advanced a couple of points on news of the 25 cent extra dividend. There was a good demand for Texas Duval Sulphur which rallied more than a point. Parker Rust Proof, Sherwin Williams, Safety Car, Novadel Agene, Newmont, New York Steam and Lake Shore Mines also improved in varying degrees of activity.

Sections of the oil division displayed considerable liveliness. International Petroleum was unusually active, rising about a point, while Imperial Oil of Canada also traded briskly at higher levels. Changes among utility shares were narrow; some of them scarcely moved. American Gas pointed upward and Niagara Hudson was mildly firm, but Electric Bond & Share hovered around Friday's final price. In Alcohols Hiram Walker sagged a point. Metals were inactive.

GRAIN NOTES

CHICAGO, April 14—(AP)—Favorable developments at Washington created a stronger sentiment and lifted grain prices upward after an early break in the market yesterday. From a trade standpoint the principal development was senate approval of a revenue bill amendment for a reduction in the tax on speculative trades in commodities to 1 cent from 5 cents per $100 valuation. Market sentiment also received strength from a prediction that silver legislation would be approved at the present session of congress, a report that congress might adjourn about May 15, and reports that a proposed bill to regulate grain exchanges might be tabled.

The trade heard an unconfirmed rumor that a large professional operator, who was understood to have been long for some time, was responsible for the heavy early liquidation in both corn and wheat. Trading in all grains was featured by spreading operations.

The department of agriculture reported that probably 50 per cent of the total supply of corn on farms in Iowa, Nebraska and Illinois has been pledged for government loans. Total reserves in the three states were listed as 428,000,000 bushels and 200,000,000 bushels were said to have been stored on loan contracts.

DENY REHEARING INSURANCE CASE

The Nebraska Supreme court Saturday denied the State Farmers Insurance company of Omaha a rehearing of a suit in which the company sought to assert its right to collect assessments in advance of actual losses. The company is a mutual concern and mutual insurance companies of the state protested the decision of the court, denying the right to collect assessments in advance, as jeopardizing the existence of mutual companies.

The opinion was handed down in a suit brought by Rudolph Hobza in Madison county to collect on a fire insurance policy, which the company claimed had lapsed because of Hobza's failure to pay an assessment. His defense was that the assessment had been levied to meet anticipated and not actual losses.

Dr. French Resigns As President Of Hastings College

HASTINGS, Neb., April 14—(AP)—The executive committee of the Hastings college board of trustees today received the resignation of Dr. Calvin H. French, it's president since 1920. Ill health has kept Dr. French from his duties for several weeks. He now is at the home of a son, Robert, at Augusta, Kas.

The resignation will be effective when his successor is appointed. Dr. French has headed Hastings college longer than any other president. He came here from Winter Park, Fla., where he was president of Rollins college. Previously he served as president of Huron college in Huron, S. D.

During his administration here the college faculty has been enlarged from 16 to 44 members and the student enrollment and the endowment were more than doubled.

INSULL AT LAST IN U. S. CUSTODY

S. S. EXILONA, Bound for the United States from Smyrna, April 14—(AP)—Samuel Insull, puffing a black cigar, strove to mask his dejection today as this American liner bore him homeward.

Turkey, true to its word, turned the fallen utilities czar over to the United States at Smyrna last night to be shipped back to Chicago for trial.

Much of the time today the former multi-millionaire spent in the ship's saloon. He nibbled at sandwiches, puffed vigorously at his big cigars—and exchanged tales of strange experiences with Burton Y. Berry of the Istanbul American embassy.

At 10:30 o'clock last night a couple of hours before the Exilona started beneath star-flecked skies upon its month-long journey to Boston and New York, Berry received into his custody the old man Illinois wants for trial on embezzlement and fraud charges.

E. C. May Acquitted

PEORIA, Ill., April 14—(AP)—After deliberating seven hours, a jury acquitted Emmet C. May, former president of the Peoria Life Insurance Co., of charges of embezzling $34,004 of the company's funds.

The defense had pleaded that May had been made the "goat" of the insurance company receivership.

VAN SWERINGEN AND 2 BANKERS FACING CHARGES

Enter Pleas of Not Guilty; Accused of Making False Reports.

CLEVELAND, April 14—(AP)—O. P. Van Sweringen, the railroad magnate and two Cleveland bankers, were arraigned in Common Pleas court today and pleaded not guilty to indictments for making false reports about the condition of the closed Union Trust Co., of Cleveland.

Those who appeared with him were Joseph R. Nutt, former chairman of the bank's board and former treasurer of the national republican party, and W. M. Baldwin, former president of the banking institution.

CLEVELAND, O., April 14—(AP)—O. P. Van Sweringen, railroad king, and two banker friends indicted with him, denied today that they engineered a $10,000,000 "paper" transaction to dress the front window of the Union Trust Co., now defunct.

The county jury returned indictments yesterday against Van Sweringen, Joseph R. Nutt, former chairman of the bank's board and former treasurer of the republican national committee, and W. M. Baldwin, former president of the institution.

The charge is that the bankers made a false entry in the books and gave a false report to the state banking superintendent. Van Sweringen is accused of abetting them. They faced arraignment in common pleas court today.

Transaction Outlined.

Prosecutor Frank Cullitan outlined the transaction as follows:

Van Sweringen visited the J. P. Morgan offices in New York on September 29, 1931 "on another matter." Ushered into another room, he found Nutt, who previously had asked if Van Sweringen could sell the Cleveland bank some bonds.

Papers were signed whereby the railroad man sold the bank $10,000,000 in government bonds, which he had left with the Morgan company for safekeeping. The Van Sweringen deposit account in the Cleveland bank was credited with $10,112,540, representing the market value, plus acrued interest.

On the same date, the Union Trust Co. statement showed the bank held $10,112,540 in bonds and interest. Nine days later the transaction was reversed, and Van Sweringen bought the bonds back. The securities themselves remained in the Morgan vaults throughout, and Prosecutor Cullitan quoted Van Sweringen as acknowledging that no money had changed hands.

"I did it merely to accommodate Joe Nutt and others of the Union Trust staff," he was quoted as saying.

FCA Official Confers Here On Farm Credit

H. C. M. Case, an assistant to Governor W. I. Myers of the federal farm credit administration, called Saturdya on Chairman W. H. Smith of the Nebraska conciliation board at the capitol to discuss the situation in this state with regard to easing conditions for farm mortgage debtors.

Another federal man, Kenneth F. Jones, regional inspector for emergency conservation work of the national park service, with headquarters at Denver, conferred with State Purchasing Agent J. R. Farris relative to supplies for the Niobrara conservation camp, which Jones had just visited.

State Labor Commissioner Cecil Matthews received a call Friday from W. H. Debel, chairman of the Minnesota industrial commission. The latter is a graduate of the University of Nebraska.

SWEEPING SLASH IN ITALIAN PAY AND LIVING COST

Drastic Cut in Government Workers' Salaries and Rent Charges.

ROME, April 14—(AP)—The council of ministers today decreed sweeping reductions in salaries and the cost of living in order to place Italy in a position to compete with other nations in the foreign market.

The council, over which Premier Mussolini presided in person, ordered all rents in Italy reduced 12 per cent.

Government employes' salaries were cut from six to 12 per cent.

All other costs, such as food, transportations and utilities, are to fall in proportion so that Italy can manufacture goods that will have even price chances with those of other nations.

This is the second such nationwide deflation in three years, another having been ordered in October, 1930, along almost the same lines.

Industrial Pay Cut To Come.

The council of ministers did not touch the salaries of employes of industry and commerce but these will be reduced through the fascist corporative state organization.

Government employes whose salaries range up to 500 lire ($42.50) a month are not touched. Those with salaries between 500 and 1,000 lire (from $42.50 to $85) are reduced 6 per cent.

Salaries between 1,000 and 1,500 lire ($85 to $127.50) are cut 8 per cent; those between 1,500 and 2,000 lire ($127.50 to $170) are cut 10 per cent; above 2,000 lire they are cut 12 per cent.

The rental on stores was reduced 15 per cent.

The council ministers voted to slash their own salaries 20 per cent.

The cabinet decided also that bachelors should pay an even greater penalty for the privilege of remaining single. Their tax was doubled to 50 per cent of their income.

The council also decided to regulate the importation of oilless seeds, copper, wool and coffee through a system of licenses to be granted according to the amount of Italian exportation to those countries from which those materials come.

The new level of prices goes into effect Monday.

The cabinet also reduced the prices of goods in government cooperative stores for government employes 10 per cent. On the other hand reductions are made in the living allowances given certain classes of government employes. Pensions, however, are untouched.

MINIMUM WHEAT EXPORT PRICE PLAN APPROVED

interfere with the minimum price system.

The most interesting feature of the subcommittee's report is the proposal for a price committee of four experts to sit in London and meet at least once a month. It would study wheat export movement in relation to quotas and raise or lower minimum prices of individual exporting countries should they be selling too much or too little wheat in relation to their quotas.

This is described as a method of controlling quotas through prices.

The subcommittee also recommended that exporting countries whose domestic price is lower than the export minimum to be agreed upon raise that price to a new level partly through reducing their stocks.

The new system should go into effect on June 1, or as soon thereafter as possible, the group said.

DEAN KELLY RETAKEN.

KEARNEY, Neb., April 14—(AP)—Dean Kelly, who escaped with Paul Wolfe from the state industrial school here a week ago, has been recaptured in Denver. Wolfe is still at large. Clem Wimberley, a guard they slugged with a piece of lead pipe, was not injured seriously.

Answer Is Filed In Redistricting Suit

All allegations of the plaintiff in the legislative redistricting suit brought against County Clerk Morgan are denied in an answer which County Attorney Towle filed Saturday for Morgan. The case was brought by Logan Rogers, Lancaster county farmer, seeking an injunction to prevent Morgan from redistricting the county. Rogers claims the law passed by the 1933 legislature redistricting Lancaster and Douglas counties is invalid on the ground it does not provide equitable distribution of the voting population.

$167 Judgment Asked Against C. B. Woolsey

F. J. Hammel has filed suit in District court for $167 aainst Curry B. Woolsey, justice of the peace in West Lincoln precinct, claiming Woolsey has refused to turn over collections made in several cases in his court.

Hammel asks $100 onhisown account and alleges Woolsey has refused to turn over to him $50 claimed to have been collected and also refused to prepare a transcript for filing in District court for the purpose of collecting the balance of a $97 judgment in Hammel's favor. Hammel claims he has paid all costs in his case and offered to pay all fees for the transcript asked.

The rest of the judgment asked against Woolsey represents assignments claimed held by Hammel in other cases where the justice of the peace is alleged to have made collectons and failed to deliver the money. Hammel sues for amounts claimed due as follows: Judgment for Cora N. Bennet, $29.50; Beverly A. Finkle, $23; and Walter Hagerty, $14.67.

WATER PROJECTS ENABLING ACT IS HELD VALID

erty, and the other empowering the district to pledge its assets and property as security for the PWA loan, the opinion concedes that there is a "remote contingency" that the district might pass to the hands of private parties through foreclosure of bonds, issued by the federal government against the loan, in event of default on the securities.

This was one of the chief arguments raised by Loseke.

See No Conflict.

"But even if the plant and property of the district should go into the hands of a private individual or corporation by virtue of judicial sale, still that would not be prohibited by the act," Judge Good wrote. "It is only direct action by the district of leasing or alienating its plant, etc., to a private person, individual, firm or corporation that is prohibited. We think there is no serious conflict between the two sections."

"What would result, in the event the district should mortgage its plant, default in the conditions of the mortgage and a foreclosure follow, and whether the plant could be sold and title given to a private individual or corporation, is a question that is not now before us and presents a contingency that may never arise. In any event, the contingency is so remote that it need not be considered."

In disposing of the argument that the Columbus district may provide unfair competition and drive private and municipal electric plants out of busines, the opinion said that "this goes only to the wisdom of the legislation and not to its validity. That was a matter for the legislature to decide. Its action in that respect is not subject to review by this court."

Claim Landowners Protected.

Rights of landowners are fully protected against the taking by the district of their property without just compensation and by due process of law, the opinion holds. The right of eminent domain is conferred upon the district by the act after the manner prescribed by law, it is pointed out.

Whether the district has funds available with which to pay for property condemned does not render the enabling act unconstitutional, the opinion declares.

"It would be necessary for the district to acquire the funds to pay for property condemned, in the event that it becomes necessary for it to resort to condemnation. This court is not concerned with the difficulties that the district may encounter in obtaining the funds with which to finance construction of its proposed plant. Since relator (Loseke) and others similarly situated are fully protected in their private property and are assured that it may not be taken from them, except upon payment of just compensation, neither relator nor anyone similarly situated has cause to complain."

Procedure Found Proper.

The court upheld the contention of attorneys for the district that the enabling act was properly passed by both houses of the legislature, and also that the title of the act is not broader than its subject, two points on which the constitutionality of the legislation was attacked.

Loseke alleged that the house added several amendments to which the senate never concurred, charging that the senate records show the upper house concurred only in the "amendment" rather than the "amendments." The court applied the rule that the singular number often includes the plural, and held that the bill, as certified by the president and secretary of the senate, contains all the amendments that were made by the house, proof that the senate concurred in all the amendments.

"An enrolled bill, signed by the presiding officer of each house of the legislature and approved by the governor, imports verity as to its passage, and its passage can only be overthrown by the journals of the house or senate, showing affirmatively that the bill was not passed in the manner prescribed by the constitution," the opinion stated.

The court found that, although the title of the enabling act is "probably more of a synopsis of the act than is essential," all of the subjects contained in the title are so related as to be a part of one general subject.

To Speed Sutherland

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., April 14—(AP)—Keith Neville, a director of the Platte Valley Power and Irrigation district, better known as the Sutherland project, today said the Supreme court decision would speed up issuance of bonds by the PWA and that work on the project here should get under way in a few weeks.

He hopes sufficient water will have been contracted for by the middle of next week to comply with requirements demanded by the PWA.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS— By John Hix

The hardening of concrete is not simply a drying out process, it is a chemical reaction. The water which is used in the mixture of concrete is absorbed, in part, in the chemical reactions which take place while the mixture is setting. the ability to set under water is one of the distinguishing characteristics of concrete. It is defined by one authority, thus:

"While fundamentally any cementitious material may be used in its manufacture, the term (concrete) is now exclusively applied to the artificial stone in which the binder is a hydraulic cement, i.e., one that will set under water."

Strange as it seems, it takes no more upright pickets to build a picket fence over a hill than on the level, as illustrated above, with the uprights the same distance apart. The distance between the pickets is measured along a horizontal line, and even though the tops may be on different levels, the distance between them is the same.

all power in the Roman state, the speaker pointed out how that power was seized. By historic illustration, Dr. Oldfather left by inference the conclusion that modern dictatorship is not, as has often been suggested recently, "direct and efficient democracy."

Two Marches On Rome.

"Augustus Caesar's march on Rome in about 12 B. C. has a modern parallel in Mussolini's march on Rome when he became dictator," Dr. Oldfather said.

The speaker pointed out that Augustus, in the inscription which he had prepared for his great tomb, pretended that his actions were an expression of "direct democracy," but that his absolute control of the Roman army was the thing which gave him his real power. As he closed Dr. Oldfather, without further comment, remarked, "Perhaps history never repeats itself but an unlimited monarchy followed the reign of Augustus."

Dr. Oldfather's address was given in social sciences building on the University of Nebraska campus at 11 o'clock Saturday morning.

Review Committee Reports.

Following an early morning breakfast which members of the association attended at the University club, time was given to a review and discussion of the five volumes of published reports of the American Historical associations committee for investigation of the social studies. The studies, one of which was compiled by Rose B. Clark of Nebraska Wesleyan University, are a searching analysis of the causes underlying the condition in which the world now finds itself.

After an extended review of the published reports by Miss Juliette Griffin of Omaha, Wendell D. Ames of Lincoln high school added personal interpretations of the studies and led an open forum discussion. Dr. H. C. Koch, professor of secondary education at the University of Nebraska, followed with a report on an experiment being conducted in the Beatrice schools where the social science curriculum has been revised to keep step with current conditions.

The time given to the social studies reports at the association meeting, according to Dr. James L. Sellers of the University of Nebraska who presided at the breakfast forum, was for the purpose of giving Nebraska history teachers added background and new points of view for teaching history with an eye to more emphasis in classes of the relation of events of the present day to happenings of the past.

Peace Depends on U. S.

Dr. Isaac J. Cox' talk followed a luncheon at the University club and was the concluding event of the annual meeting.

In justification of his conclusion that world peace depends largely on the United States at the present time he said, "A workable peace policy must be established somewhere and North and South America afford the most promising area for such a noble experiment."

"Of course," he added, "in this new crusade the United States must first clear its own record and must realize that economic imperialism does not pay."

That the present administration is working toward the end of 'clearing the record' is shown, he said, by the progressive withdrawal of American marines from the Caribbean and by our professions of good will. He cited instances where American trade has increased more with outside nations than with our protectorates.

"At the present day," he said, "we realize more thoroughly than ever before, the futility of mere material factors to promote international well-being."

DEBATE TITLE TO OMAHA TECH

1929, and 1934. Trenton had never before competed in the state tournament.

On their way to the state championship, Tech disposed of Geneva by the score of 2-1 in the first round, Blair by the score of 3-0 in the second round, Holdrege by the score of 3-0 in the semi-finals Thursday night and Trenton in the finals. Tech debated on the negative side of the question in every case. Only 3 of the fifteen debates were decided in favor of affirmative teams. The Tech team is coached by Ira O. Jones.

After drawing a first round bye, Trenton had disposed of Auburn by the score of 2-1 in the first round and DeWitt by the score of 3-0 in the semi-finals Thursday night. D. C. Scofield is the Trenton coach.

Plan Education Aid Topic.

Prof. H. Adelbert White, coach of debate at the University of Nebraska, announced Saturday morning that next year's question probably would deal with a federal subsidy for education.

Chancellor E. A. Burnett announced the decision of the judges in the final contest. Judges were John E. Curtiss, Dean C. Horton Talley of Nebraska Wesleyan university, and Gayle C. Walker of the University of Nebraska. C. K. Morse, secretary-treasurer of the Nebraska high school debating league, which sponsors the tournament, presided.

Paxton Hotel Sale Is Upheld By Court

Found That Offer of Omaha Safe Deposit Is In Interest of Bondholders.

The Supreme court Saturday upheld the right of the Omaha Safe Deposit company to bid in the Paxton hotel property at a foreclosure sale by covering its offer with approximately $1,375,000 of the defaulted mortgage bonds.

The opinion was handed down in the appeal of the Continental Life Insurance company of St. Louis, holder of a number of the bonds. The insurance company contested the action of the safe deposit company, which is trustee for the holders of the defaulted bond issue.

District Judge E. B. Chappell, who sat with the court at the hearing of the appeal and wrote the opinion, declared that the safe deposit company's action safeguards the rights of bondholders who might not be able to bid on the property because of financial incapacity and they would therefor be put at the mercy of those bondholders more able financially to purchase the property at a fraction of its ordinary value.

Lake City Forced to Drop National High Meet

Federation of Prep Schools Hangs Ban On Annual Track Classic

CHICAGO, April 14—(AP)—The University of Chicago's famous national interscholastic track and field games, which brought into prominence Glenn Cunningham, Clarence (Bud) Hauser, F. Morgan Taylor, Eddie Tolan and a host of other stars, has gone the way of A. A. Stagg's equally famous prep basketball classic—out of existence.

National Federation Says No.

Opposition by the National Federation of State High School Athletic associations, which was responsible for the death of the basketball tournament several years ago, caused the event to be dropped after 29 years. Thomas N. Metcalf, successor to Stagg as the university's athletic director, said last night.

Metcalf received a letter from C. W. Whitten, secretary of the National Federation, saying the organization had adopted a resolution instructing the executive council not to sanction national athletic meets for high school boys.

"It is my opinion," Whitten wrote, "that the National Federation will not desire to co-operate with the University of Chicago in continuing the interscholastic track and field meet"

The thirtieth running of the event had been tentatively scheduled for the early part of June.

FAMOUS FIGHTER DIES IN POVERTY

Friends Must Contribute Or Dixie Kid Will Go To Pauper's Grave.

LOS ANGELES, April 14—(AP)—Friends of Aaron L. Brown—the "Dixie Kid" to the fistic firmament—today sought donations to save the former world's welterweight champion from a pauper's grave.

Veteran of more than a hundred battles in the years from 1899 to 1914 and a disputed title-holder for four years, the Dixie Kid died a week ago, yet the sports world wasn't apprised of the fact until late yesterday. He was 51 years old.

The "Dixie Kid" was a fighter when boxing was being graduated from bar rooms to big business. He won the right to claim the championship by getting the nod over Joe Wolcott on a foul at San Francisco, April 30, 1904. Less than two weeks later, Walcott held him to a draw in 20 rounds, which resulted in a dispute over his right to the title, but he was generally accepted as the champion until 1908.

Once Knocked Out Carpentier.

While on a European tour in 1911, he scored a five-round knockout over Georges Carpentier—The Carpentier who challenged and lost to Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight championship in 1921.

Brown spent his ring earnings lavishly and spent his last days in extreme poverty.

His death was such an insignificant item in the run of the big city news that his name did not even appear in the vital statistics column.

The hospital report read:

"Aaron L. Brown, born Fulton, Mo., Dec. 23, 1883, died April 6, 1934. Natural causes."

SWIMMING STAR RETAINS HONORS

Miss Kight Still Queen of Feminine Splashers At 220 Yards.

CHICAGO, April 14 — (INS) — Lenore Kight, Homestead, Pa., swimming star, who retained her 200-yard free style championship, will try to repeat tonight in the 500-yard event as the national A. A. U. women's swimming championships come to a close.

Eleanor Holm Jarrett, Olympic swimming champion, won a 30-yard advantage in the 100-yard back stroke to help the women's swimming association of New York retain the 500-meter medley relay championship last night. Although unofficial, Mrs. Jarrett was timed for the 100 yards in 1 minute 9.8 seconds, which was better than her own world record of 1:11.6.

The Carnegie Library Club of Homestead, Pa., with Miss Kight swimming anchor, finished second, two feet in front of the Lake Shore A. C. (Chicago) first team.

The women's events will be concluded tonight with the 500-free style, 150-yard back stroke and high board diving competition.

Dorothy Poynton of Los Angeles A. C. will defend her title in the diving and among her rivals well be young Miss Katherine Rawls of the Miami Beach club.

Holds Two Championships.

Mrs. Jarret promises to have things her own way in the backstroke in which she holds both the national and Olympic championships, as well as the world record, a mark she will have an opportunity to beat officially.

Jack Medica, in an exhibition, proved himself to be the fastest water speedster to come along since Johnny Weissmuller turned Tarzan. The 19-year-old star of the Washington Athletic club lowered Weissmuller's record of 2.37 for 220 yards by a full two seconds. He will go into action again tonight and this time the records at 550, 600, 700 and 800 yards will be his goal.

Team standings today were as follows:

Team Standings.

Carnegie Library club, Homestead, Pa	25
Washington A. C., Seattle, Wash	14
Miami Beach club, Florida	13
Women's Swimming association, New York	12
Detroit Yacht club	5
Lake Shore A. C., Chicago	4
Los Angeles A. C	3

Miss Rawls was leading the individual standings with 10 points. Trailing her were Miss Kight and Olive McKean of Washington, A. C., with eight points each and Dorris Shimman, Detroit Yacht club, with five points.

PESEK DOGS IN NATIONAL MEET

Tigerman's Hounds Enter Coursing Classic At Joplin.

JOPLIN, Mo., April 14—(AP)—Some of the middlewest's outstanding greyhounds will test their speed against that of western Kansas jackrabbits at the annual spring meeting of the National Coursing association, which opens here tomorrow.

John Pesek, Ravena, Neb.; Arch Decker, Coffeyville, Kas., and Dennis Callaghan, Peoria, Ill., whose hounds hold two legs each on the national all-age derby cup, have entered their favorite speedsters.

The first major event of the week is the National Futurity for which pairings will be made tonight. More than 100 hounds are eligible for the Futurity and 341 are down for competition in the Sapling Stake.

TERRY DECLINES ADMIT WEAKNESS

Leader of Giants Claims Another Pennant For His Gotham Club.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 14—The New York Giants' failure to win consistently in their spring exhibitions hasn't dimmed Manager Bill Terry's optimism about winning the National league pennant a bit.

"I don't see anyone better than we are," he remarked. "We haven't been hitting. We'll hit when the season starts. My chief worry is Mancuso. The doctor says he may be able to work by April 27 and when we have him in the game we'll be a different team."

Terry's optimism was scarcely in line with the Giants' persistent inability to go the pace with the Cleveland Indians in the spring exhibition series. The Giants were forced to gulp another defeat here yesterday, as the Indians came from behind to beat the Terrymen, 5 to 4. Earl Averill's homer in the ninth produced three runs. Cleveland outhit the Giants, 11 to 5, but made three errors in the field to the Giants' one.

Braves Bump Red Sox.

BOSTON, April 14—(AP)—St. Petersburg, Sarasota or Boston—it's all one to the Braves, who have thrice downed their American league rivals, the Red Sox.

The fourth game will be played here today and Cantwell and Walberg will be the opposing pitchers.

Hal Lee, who is filling in for the injured Rabbit Maranville at second base, yesterday accepted 13 chances cleanly, registering 10 putouts to equal Jordan's fielding performance at first, and participated in the only double play of the game. The Braves won yesterday, 4 to 3, in 10 innings.

Yanks Back to Big Town.

NEW YORK, April 14—(INS)—The big town's baseball bugs get their first chance today to see two of their favorite aggregations in action.

After a lengthy and profitable tour of the southland, the Yankees, with Babe Ruth, supposedly through, playing the greatest spring game of his career, return to the stadium and with them for a two-day exhibition series come the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Dodgers likewise are winding up a lengthy and profitable southern tour.

The Yankees staged one of those wild and wooly batting orgies which used to characterize the team in the halcyon days of 1926-'27-'28 to down the Richmond, Va., club yesterday by a 20 to 12 score. The McCarthymen smacked 21 hits and everybody had a hand in the slugging.

The Brooklyns also won yesterday. They thumped three of Joe Cronin's pitchers for 17 hits to trounce the Senators in Washington. The score was 5 to 4.

Cubs Take On White Sox.

CHICAGO, April 14—(INS)—The Cubs and White Sox today started on the last lap of their six-game spring exhibition series. With a 3 to 1 lead rolled up in California, the National league team determined to pile up a bigger majority at Wrigley field today and at Comiskey park tomorrow. Pat Malone will pitch for the Cubs and Sad Sam Jones was the White Sox selection for this afternoon.

The Cubs will leave for Cincinnati Sunday night for the opening game there Tuesday.

Pirates at Home With Nats.

PITTSBURGH, April 14—(INS)—Their barn-storming tour ended with a 3 to 2 victory over the Chicago White Sox, the Pittsburgh Pirates were greeted in their home city today by rain, snow and cold weather. A group of loyal fans cheered the team as they arrived here for their scheduled exhibition game with the Washington Senators.

Phillies and A's Resume.

PHILADELPHIA, April 14—(INS)—The rival third basemen of both clubs will be on the sidelines at Shibe park this afternoon when the Philadelphia Athletics tangle with the Phillies in the third game of their dead-locked annual city championship series. Pinky Higgins, A's third-sacker, is out with an injured hand, received last Tuesday when he stopped a torrid liner. Lou Chiozza, custodian of the Phillies' hot corner, has been unable to rid himself of a knee injury.

Splashing Meet at U. Coliseum Pool

University of Nebraska coliseum pool records appear certain to tumble tonight when the Lincoln "Y" All-Stars meet the Golden Gate Junior college swimming team from San Francisco in a dual meet. The program will start at 8 o'clock and includes a number of exhibitions in addition to the regular events.

Art Lindegren, Pacific coast free-style champion, tops the Frisco squad, which is on its way to the national Y. M. C. A. championships in St. Louis. Lindegren holds a mark of 52 3-10 seconds in the 100-yard free style and has been clocked in 2 minutes 16 8-10 seconds for the 220-yard distance. Program and entrants:

NEBRASKA DROPS GAME TO AGGIES

Cluster of Errors Puts Huskers On Short End At Manhattan.

MANHATTAN, April 14—Nebraska was prepared today for an attempt to even the baseball series with Kansas State, the Wildcats having turned in a 12-4 victory at the Cornhuskers' expense Friday afternoon. Five errors, four of them in the outfield, factored in Nebraska's defeat.

The Kaggies had a big fourth inning, scoring seven runs. The Huskers came back in the sixth with three runs. Score:

CORUM'S CHATTER

By BILL CORUM.

NEW YORK, April 14—(INS)—The New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Robins slipped quietly into our town while we slept last evening, so that we woke up this morning to find another baseball season sitting in our laps. It is a strange situation to wake up and find a baseball season sitting in your lap, but just think if it was Kate Smith.

However, the Yankees and the Robins will meet in the first of two exhibition games at the Yankee stadium this afternoon, after which all will not be quiet on the Harlem until next October rolls around.

The twin home-coming that took place in the quiet hours between midnight and dawn was significant in more ways than one. It marked the first time that Charles Dillon (Casey) Stengel ever led his own ball team into Greater New York City, and the last time that George Herman (Babe) Ruth will ever come home from the southland as a player.

In a way the Babe is the last of three aces once held by the fans of our town. There was John McGraw of the Giants, Wilbert Robinson of the Robins and Ruth of the Yankees.

Now McGraw is dead, Robbie is gone and the Babie pulls in from St. Pete for the last time to thrill us with the prodigious home runs that saved the game in its darkest hours and served to start an era of slugging such as it never had seen before.

I got to thinking of the changes that had taken place in baseball around our town in the last decade.

Only Ruth of the figures active on the field was, so far as I could recall, left. Miller Huggins was gone, of course, and now even Herb Pennock, the smoothest, slickest southpaw pitcher of 'em all. But there were no more Pipps, Peckinpaughs, Pratts Shawkeys, Scotts, Shockers, O'Neills Dugans, Bob Meusels, or what do you remember?

As for the Giants, there was really nobody left who went back to those red-hot nickel world's series between the Stoneham Sharpshooters and the Ruppert Rifles of the early 1920s. No, I was wrong. There was one—Pancho Snyder. But the big Texan was a coach now, a fellow who ambled out to the line and said: "You can do it, ol' boy, ol' boy!" and even he had been gone long enough to be forgotten before Terry picked him up again, so that the continuity was broken.

Little Arthur Nehf, the organ-playing portsider, was somewhere out in Arizona, where he had gone originally for the health of his youngsters. He had even picked up a promising rookie and schooled him and sent him on to Terry—the big outfielder, Hank Lieber. The Barnes boys, Jess and Virgil, strange characters both, had long since drifted back to their native Kansas wheatfields.

Will I ever forget the day that Jess pitched that no-hit game against the Phillies? What a thrill!

The laughing Meusel, "Irish," had gone to form a partnership with Bob in the delicatessen business in Los Angeles, and, without half trying, I could see Bob weighing up a pound of potato salad He couldn't even get a bang out of pounding out a home run with the bases full before 60,000 persons.

But we were back-tracking the Giants Long George Kelly has folded up like an accordion, too, and I have no idea what has become of Heinie Der Groh and his funny little bottle bat. Frisch's cap, of course, still is in the ring, though it clings to his head closer than it once did—he's growing bald. Bannie, however, has drifted back toward the middle west again, and probably is bawling "beauty" at some cornfed umpire in that section, who has no idea he is listening to a word that once delighted the fans of our town.

I can hear Bannie yet calling "beauty" for a pitch that was made just an inch or so off line He was only helping the umpire out, of course. But it gave him his nickname—"Beauty" Bancroft.

Jackson, the ancient Arkansas traveler, and Terry were in there when the 1924 world's series rolled around but Ross Youngs has been dead these many years, and Young O'Connell still is in exile with the rest of Landis's black sheep.

As for Stengel, who was a Giant, too, once, we have already told you where he is, but it is not so easy to put the finger on the Robins of the gay '20s. Ivy Olsen was making book the last I heard of him. Zack Wheat, idol of the left field stands, wrote me a letter not long ago looking for a job as coach with his old team. But baseball is a quick forgetting game, friends.

SUCKERS SET TO TAKE TRIMMING

Easy Marks Prepared Bet Hundred Millions On Horse Races.

BY PAT ROBINSON.

NEW YORK, April 14—(INS) — One hundred million dollars!

That's the sum conservative statisticians today figure will be wagered on the ponies at New York tracks this year.

One hundred million dollars during 162 days of racing!

That sum staggers the imagination. It's sufficient to pay off the debt of any one of 40 states of the union or enough to pay off the combined debt of 20 of them. Even Broadwayites, who talk in thousands with dimes in their pockets, admit that's important money.

One hundred millions. And yet that means only the sum to be wagered at the tracks and does not take into account the millions that will be laid with shoe-string bookies who infest every apartment house and office building. Nobody has any idea what that tax-dodging sum may be.

One hundred millions. For that kind of money Broadway is making ready to deck itself out as it never did even in its palmiest days. For Broadway is well aware that race track money is sucker money — easy-come-easy-go money that winds up in a spending orgy on the gay white way.

Wars Kindled For Less.

One hundred millions. Wars have been started over far less and yet probably not more than 175 bookies will handle most of it. With open betting again in force in this state, the old-time bookies will be back on the job.

There will be about 25 of the big shots in the clubhouse. Fellows like Coley Madden, Tom Shaw, Morty Lynch and Bill Beverley. These are the lads who will not bat an eyelash if you should like to bet $1,000, $10,000 on a race.

There will be at least 100 bookies in the big ring and they, too, will be prepared to take bigger bets than most of us would ever dream of laying.

Then ehere will be about 50 field bookies to take care of the small fry, even as you and I.

Ben Eastman Primed Run Fast Half-Mile

STANFORD STADIUM, al., April 14—(INS)—Led by "Blazin' Ben" Eastman, the record-smasher, no less than 10 former Stanford track and field stars will return here today wearing the colors of Olympic club and hopeful of trimming their alma mater.

Among the ex-Indians who will represent the Olympic club will be Bobby Jones, Herc Laborde, Ernie Arbuckle, Al Herbert, Norman Bright, Art Rice, Sam Eastman, Les Hables and Don Blackman.

If good weather prevails, Ben Eastman is expected to "open up" and run the fastest half-mile to be witnessed on the Pacific coast this year.

GEORGIAN HOLDS MICKEY TO DRAW

But Frisco's Fight Fans Booed Decision At End of Bout.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 14—(AP)—Mickey Walker's comeback record as a light-heavyweight listed another draw with Bob Godwin today, his second with the Moultrie, Ga., boy within the last few months.

They fought 10 rounds to what Referee Eddie Burns called an even affair here last night. The majority of ringsiders among the scant gathering of fans, however, favored Walker as the result of two knockdowns and his harder punching.

The former welterweight and middleweight champion, who took a fling in the heavyweight division and withdrew because he had to give away too much poundage, dropped Godwin in the sixth and eighth rounds Each time the Georgian went down from a right to the jaw for the count of seven.

Fighters Booed by Fans.

The first four rounds were slow and the small crowd booed its displeasure.

Walker put on steam to hold the advantage in the next five rounds. In the eighth, the sturdy New Jersey ring veteran suffered a bad gash over his left eye, but he won the round with a rally that saw him drop Godwin. The cut handicapped Walker for the remainder of the bout.

Godwin forced the going in the last round and his blows were more effective. Walker weighed 169 pounds to 174½ pounds for his opponent.

STAR GRAPPLERS IN SEMI-FINALS

Iowa and Oklahoma Set Pace In A. A. U. Mat Carnival at Ames.

AMES, Ia., April 14—(AP)—Iowa and Oklahoma mat stars led a field of champions into the semi-finals of the national A. A. U. wrestling tournament here today as the result of sensational matches in the opening rounds yesterday.

Fifteen Hawkeye state grapplers made their way into the semi-finals, while Southwestern State Teachers of Oklahoma came through with a representative in nearly every event.

The biggest upset of the early rounds was the defeat of A. Thiele, Kansas State college heavyweight star, by Gil Passick, Valley Junction, Ia., performer, who is wearing the colors of the Des Moines Y. M. C. A.

Robert Hess, 1932 Olympic team member, put on one of the fastest bouts of the second round when he tossed E Ahlstrand of the St Paul "Y" in 1 56. The Iowa State athlete gave every indication that he will be hard to beat in the 165-pound division

With the individual crowns still much in doubt team honors appeared headed for Iowa State college or the Southwestern State Teachers The Cyclones had four victories at the end of the second round, while the Oklahoma lads turned in three decisions and two falls.

Ball Clubs of Majors On Final Dress Parade Before Fans At Home

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, April 14—(INS)—Less than three days out from the 1934 openings, this will be dress rehearsal day in the major leagues, with all 16 clubs going into action for the first time in front of rabid, home-town crowds. It is one of the biggest exhibition days of many years, a sort of climax for a training season that has devoted itself with conspicuous gusto to the capture of the casual or exhibition dollar. It also is a little window dressing for the official ceremonies Monday in Washington and of Tuesday elsewhere, everything being in readiness, even the weather. I mean it couldn't be worse.

Beantown Clubs at Home.

Boston, a great baseball town, is getting its first look at the Braves and Red Sox on the same field this afternoon. The intra-mural idea is also being carried out in New York, where the Yankees will play the Dodgers; in Chicago, with the Cubs meeting the White Sox, and in Philadelphia and St. Louis, with the Phillies-Athletics and the Cardinal-Browns games.

The Pirates and Senators, 1925 opponents in the world series, will refill the prescription in Pittsburgh, meantime, while the distressed Giants will try once more to win a ball game from the Indians, this time in Cleveland. After the manner in which they have trifled with the champions of the world on this trip, the Indians ought to look pretty good to the town that hasn't known a winner since 1920.

So should the Reds, if only by contrast, in their Cincinnati premiere with the Detroit Tigers, at least until such time as the honest burghers along the American Rhine begin to arrive at a few honest conclusions.

Reds Lack Pitching.

The Reds haven't got enough hitting or enough pitching. Outside of that, everything is just splendid. The Indians seem to have looked worse. If the training season has indicated anything at all, it is that this club that won so impressively with the old ball last year is due to have its troubles with the new ball now.

The Cubs, in fact, seem to be coming up to the barrier as the best looking National league team of the moment, followed by the Cardinals and Pirates. Klein seems to have made plenty of difference to the Chicago club, although it is no fiction that left-hand hitters do not thrive at Wrigley field. That point will be one of the piquant features of the early season.

Another is Lefty Grove's sore arm and the attempt of the Boston Red Sox to challenge first-class clubs with an outfit that, in spots, is distinctly third-rate. Foxx's announced attempt to beat Ruth's record and Ruth's announced attempt to finish on his feet are other points of interest. So is the Yankee Experiment whereby Rolfe and Heffner, a couple of minor leaguers, expect to repeat the Lazzeri-Koenig miracle of 1926.

A's Look Good In Spots.

The Athletics, strangely, have looked good at times this spring, even after selling Grove, Cochrane, Walberg, Bishop and Earnshaw. Marcum turned in one impressive effort in recent weeks and, of course, any time that club gets even fair pitching, it's going to look very much the part. It has about everything else, although Philadelphia critics inform me that it can't miss the second division and that the Phillies are a better club.

However, considering the departure of Klein, Davis and Whitney, that must be just a lot of light, airy banter. As for Cochrane, about the only thing he has brought to the Tigers is himself and I should say that the Senators may be said to have lost something—simply because they haven't gained. Neither have the Braves and all they really had last year was a general idea and a lot of pitching, which gives them something on the Dodgers, at that. The Dodgers even haven't got the general idea.

Horseshoe Pitchers Plan Second League

Increased interest by Lincoln iron-heavers may clear the way to the organization of a second city horseshoe league this summer, according to Wailt J. Abker, president of the Capital City tossers. The second circuit will be known as the Commercial league.

FIFER'S TRIPLE BEATS LINCOLN

Alvo High Pitcher Socks For Three Bases; Scores Winning Run.

ALVO, Neb., April 14—Alvo's veteran mound ace, Fifer, crashed out a long three-base knock in the last half of the seventh inning and won his own ball game by scoring on a subsequent infield out to upset Lincoln high, 3-2, in the Red and Black's inaugural clash of the season here Friday afternoon. It was Alvo's second victory in as many starts.

Eddie George started the Capital City nine off on the right foot in the first inning by cracking out a single and working his way around the hassocks to tally first. Alvo matched the score in the same round and added another in the second stanza.

Dean's Blow Ties It Up.

A timely blow by Howard Dean sent Menne across the platter in the third innings to tie the count, however, after which the rival twirlers assumed control of the situation the next three innings to hurl scoreless ball.

In the last of seventh, with one out, Fifer whacked a triple and Keller walked. Christensen slapped a ground ball to Wilcoxen, who hesitated and then threw to first to catch the batter. The toss home was too late to nip Fifer, who scored the winning run

With two solid singles at bat, in addition to playing a bang-up game at short on defense Eddie George was easily Lincoln's stellar performer.

SIMPSON RECORD IN TRACK UNIQUE

Once Won Eight Events at High School Meet In Missouri.

AMES, Ia., April 14—Lawrence Costigan of Buffalo Center, Ia., promising freshman trackster at Iowa State college, could justifiably strut a little around the track during his workouts. But whenever he meets Bob Simpson, veteran Cyclone track coach, he might do well to pull his chest in a few inches and look a little less important.

Costigan last spring, while representing Buffalo Center in the North Iowa conference meet, won nine out of 10 events. The term "one-man track team" was aptly applied to Costigan and he received considerable publicity in all the newspapers throughout the state. Later in the year, he won the state has entered in a Missouri cours-

Simpson's Bosworth Record.

Coach Simpson can compare his senior year in Bosworth, Mo., high school with that of Costigan's and murmur something about Costigan being a "sissy." Simpson not only won the 100 and 220-yard dashes, high hurdles, high jump, running broad jump, hop-step-and-jump, discus and the standing broad jump, but he set a new county high school meet record in every one of the events that he won. He finished second in the shot put, and didn't compete in the low hurdles, an event in which he later became a world champion.

In his undergraduate days at the University of Missouri, Simpson won the Missouri Valley conference championships in the broad jump and both hurdles for three straight years, and won as many as six events in college dual meets.

Series Resumed By Army Polo Players

MEXICO CITY, April 14—(INS)—Highly regarded today because of its brilliant victory in the first game, the United States Army polo team will take the field at Campo Marte tomorrow morning favored to win the second game and international series with the Mexican Army four.

The superiority of the Americans' team play is expected to carry them to their second victory, in the opinion of Mexican experts, who hold there is little chance for the home team because of its inexperience in high ranking competition.

MICHIGAN SOLD SHORT BY KIPKE

Coach of Wolverines Off To Early Start at Peddling Bear.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 14—(AP)—Harry Kipke, coach of the Big Ten conference champion University of Michigan football team, was on his way back to Ann Arbor today, after dropping the hint to Memphians to "bet against us next season."

"We will not have much of a team next year," Kipke declared in an address at a "Big Ten club" banquet here last night, "and if you want to get your money back that you paid for this dinner tonight, just bet against us"

In 1930 and 1931, the Michigan Wolverines tied Northwestern for the Big Ten title In 1932 and 1933, Kipke's men won the championship.
